

Big Elk Lake Hospital Major Report Switch

By JOHN MATTERS

A new, 650-bed general hospital that would cost about $25,000,000 and take the place of St. Joseph's is being studied by regional authorities, it was learned Wednesday.

The proposal will be taken to the provincial government within the next week, said Mayor Hugh Curtis, chairman of the regional board.

The idea of a 650-bed hospital run by the management team now at St. Joseph's means hospital authorities have thrown out one of the main recommendations of the Agnew, Peckham report. That report, for which the community waited a year and spent $40,000, suggested a 200-bed centre operated by the Seventh Day Adventist Church, the owners of Resthaven.

The latest idea also is contrary to the following motion in the minutes of a hospital planning council meeting on May 8: "It was regularly moved and seconded that we re-affirm our endorsement of the Seventh Day Adventist Church as operators of the new hospital."

T. J. Bradley, administrator of Resthaven, would not comment on the recommendation when he left a meeting of the regional board's hospital advisory committee Wednesday afternoon.

Stanfield Accepts Apology

Ads Wrong—Trudeau

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday night repudiated Liberal newspaper advertisements accusing Conservative Leader Stanfield of standing for a two-nations policy over Quebec.

Trudeau told an open-air crowd of 6,000 that he had read Stanfield's comments about being an accomplice in a smear campaign against the Conservative leader. Stanfield accompanied the charge with a call to Trudeau to repudiate the advertisement.

Trudeau said he did not wish the June 25 election campaign to take on a sour note. As far as the Liberal advertisements are concerned, he would take Stanfield's word that he did not stand for two nations, one French and one English, and he repudiated the advertisement.

Trudeau said he understands that the advertisement, which had appeared in Alberta and New Brunswick, has already been discontinued.

Accompanying the repudiation was a gibe at Stanfield. Trudeau said that in fairness the Liberal party would like the Conservatives to say what their policy is related to Quebec and English Canada. At the same time he is glad that Stanfield does not stand for two nations.

In Quebec City, where he was campaigning, Stanfield's only comment on Trudeau's repudiation was: "I accept Mr. Trudeau's apologies."

Trudeau did not explain all the ramifications of two nations, an involved subject which is made more confusing by different definitions of the meaning of the word "nation" in French and English.

He alluded lightly to the controversy over whether Marcel Faribault has been designated Stanfield's Quebec lieutenant. Some say one thing and some say another, Trudeau said.

Bitter Grits 'Distort' For Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Liberals are trying to gain votes in other provinces by bitterness and hostility toward Quebec, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Wednesday night.

He delivered most of a 30-minute speech in French to one of the most enthusiastic crowds of his campaign in a hall in Quebec's Lower Town district.

More than 1,000 people, including party workers from five ridings, chanted "We want Stanfield" before his speech, and most of the crowd filed onto the stage to shake hands with him later.

Marcel Faribault, his Quebec lieutenant, made a slashing attack on the Liberal party, but his voice was hoarse to the point where the crowd was tittering.

Stanfield said Liberals are distorting the Conservative position on the constitutional issue to "exploit any anti-Quebec sentiment wherever possible."

Stanfield said his party stands for "one country, one

Canada with a federal system of government, one country of two founding peoples, who have been joined by Canadians of other cultures."

"This is the policy of our party. This is Mr. Faribault's policy."

Stanfield, flying in a helicopter called Faribault, landed on the Plains of Abraham earlier.

His Quebec City visit capped a two-day tour of the province and evidently was aimed at helping unseat Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, Liberal candidate in Langlier.

The helicopter is named after Stanfield's Quebec lieutenant. The landing on the historic plains, near the hotel where Stanfield was to spend

Deputies Dismissed

OTTAWA (CP) — Deputy returning officers from six advance polls in five constituencies for the June 25 federal election have been dismissed for making premature counts of voting, Chief Electoral Officer Jean-Marc Hamel said Wednesday.

Involved were two polls in Port Huron and one each in Frontenac, Temiscouata, Peel-Dufferin-Simcoe and Saskatoon-Biggar.

Politically Fantastic Day Engulfs Grits in Toronto

By RON COLLISTER

TORONTO (Special) — Former prime minister Lester Pearson Wednesday night entered the election campaign and called for a majority mandate for his successor, Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

At a rally in Toronto, Pearson virtually admitted that Trudeau was his choice to succeed him.

The other day, he said, a child asked him why he quit.

"I quit for two reasons," Pearson said. "I am 71 years old. The other reason — and he pointed directly to Trudeau, sitting behind him, "is that man sitting over there."

Speculation has been rampant in Ottawa, since Pearson's retirement announcement, that he was working behind the scenes for Trudeau's candidacy at the convention.

On the public record, he refused to show any preference.

It was a fantastic day for campaigning Trudeau. In Toronto where Trudeauism is near a state of riot, probably more people saw a political leader campaigning.

In person, in one day than on any day in Canadian history.

The first rally was in Nathan Phillips Square, before the Toronto city hall.

Wednesday night, the arguments about how many were there continued ... but the general estimate was between 40,000 and 50,000. Many more thousands lined the mile-long motorcade route from Toronto's to the city hall.

At two meetings in the evening, in suburban Toronto, crowds were estimated at 12,000 and 6,000.

But it was the city hall meeting that put the happiest smile on the faces of Liberals.

It was not one of Trudeau's best speeches. He was heckled persistently by a small group of Vietnam war demonstrators, yelling "Trudeau assassin."

But, like all the other meetings, the crowds seem to

Pulp Mill Blast Kills Pipefitter

PORT ALBERNI — One man was killed and two injured shortly after 1 p.m. Wednesday in an explosion at MacMillan and Bloedel's Alulp operation here.

Killed was Rick R. Hall, 27, a pipefitter, of Stirling Arm Road.

Injured were Ernie Girbay, 39, welder, of Poplar Road, who suffered a dislocated shoulder and two broken eardrums, and George Guy, also a pipefitter, of South Morgan Crescent, who was treated at West Coast General hospital and released.

The three men were working in the digester area of the operation when a water tank apparently exploded.

Company officials opened an investigation Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Hall's wife is the former Valerie Praksley, a home economics teacher at the A. W. Neil school who has just been awarded a $1,500 scholarship to continue her studies.

IWA Optimistic Forest Pact Closer

As long as there's talk there's hope.

These few words were providing the silver lining to be found Wednesday in the B.C. forests dispute.

Both union and forest industry officials spent still another day around a bargaining table in Vancouver aware that their actions were at least stalling a 28,000-man strike on Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland. The strike deadline passed last Friday.

There were no official reports Wednesday night of the day's progress, but reasons for optimism were voiced earlier in the day.

Meanwhile, the 11-man International Woodworkers of America bargaining committee and members of Forest Industrial Relations, negotiating for some 135 companies, were expected to resume talks today.

SOME PROGRESS

Regional IWA President Jack Moore of Vancouver said late Wednesday night "we are still progressing" and that talks had been scheduled for 10 a.m. again today.

Asked if this meant negotiators were close to a settlement, he said "Well no, I wouldn't say that."

He said his own negotiating committee met throughout the evening after the day-long bargaining sessions.

Syd Thompson, president of the huge Vancouver local, had a little more to say.

WORKERS RESTLESS

He was sure, he said, a settlement would be reached some time this week because of higher prices being offered for lumber in the United States.

The same sentiment was expressed by Weldon Johnson, president of the 4,000-member Duncan local.

The only fear, aside from the possibility of a breakdown in

Sirhan's Case Accepted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A veteran Los Angeles criminal lawyer Wednesday agreed to handle, without fee and as a public service, the defence of the man accused of assassinating Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

He is Russell E. Parsons, who describes himself as a "journeyman, hardworking lawyer" who has been involved in about 3,000 cases in 40 years as a prosecutor and later a defender.

His client is Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, 24-year-old Jordanian.

The public defender's office had been representing Sirhan since his arrest.

Parsons told a reporter: "I have been interested in the case all along and I've thought about it and studied it. I'm just going to work hard and do the very best I can."

Parsons defended mobster Mickey Cohen against income tax evasion charges and handled the defence of underworld figure Joe Sica in a boxing conspiracy-extortion case.

AMMAN (AP) — Four Jordanian lawyers who had been nominated to defend Sirhan said Wednesday they have decided to cancel their trip to the United States.

No explanation was given in a statement issued by the four, which followed a meeting with Premier Rajhat Jabbouri.

Angry Complaints

Builders Demand Ship Solution

TORONTO (CP) — A group of angry Canadian shipbuilding executives called on Ottawa Wednesday to come up with a low-cost method of financing Canadian-built ships or face ruin in the industry.

Tempera flared frequently as the executives from Vancouver, Saint John, N.B., Montreal, Quebec City and Port Weller and Collingwood in Ontario wrangled over the problem of mounting layoffs in their yards and stiff competition from foreign shipbuilders.

The discussion came at the opening session of the annual meeting of the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association.

As the delegates met, federal defence officials were in Britain to attend the commissioning of the Okanagan, last of the three Oberon-class submarines ordered from British yards by the Canadian government.

"The damn things should never have been built in Britain," one delegate said.

Garbage Dump Yields Six Skulls

BELLAIRE, Ohio (AP) — Six human skulls, and possibly a seventh, were uncovered Wednesday at an old garbage dump in nearby Pinch Run Wednesday.

"There were six skulls and what looked like the remnants of a seventh one, which was pretty well chopped up."

Belmont County Prosecutor John J. Malik Jr. said he has no idea how long they have been there or where they might have come from.

Malik said four skulls were covered with skin and hair,

All the skulls contained teeth, two appeared to be Negro and one possibly was that of a young child, the prosecutor reported.

Malik said no other human parts were found, except a sack which contained what looked like human intestines. "but we can't be sure."

The skulls appeared to be from males.

They were found on property owned by Jim Cummins about two miles south of Bellaire. The property formerly was the Bellaire city dump, and some persons still deposit rubbish there illegally, Malik said.

Malik said Cummins' son was trying to find some evidence to learn who had been dumping garbage and came across the skulls.

The heads will be sent to Ohio State University for study, officials said.

Garden of Verses Bears Cultivating

AIRBORNE ODE: American Ogden Nash would seem to have no monopoly on light verse. Columnist staffer Bill Stawell found this offering blown into his garden among the leaves.

"In Vancouver town there lives a whale
She eats pork chops by the pail
By the pill box by the suitcase
By the bathtub, by the schooner.

"Her name is Scana and she's a peach
But you can't leave food within her reach
Nor sireddes, nor nursemaids
Nor chocolate ice cream sodas.

"She eats a lot but when she smiles
You can see her teeth for miles and miles
And her adenoids and her sparsitis
And other things too fierce to mention.

"Now what can you do about a thing like that,
What can you do but sit on your hat
Or your toothbrush or your grandmother
Or anything else that's help-less."

It just goes to show that if you can't get time to gulp culture in the living room you may get a waft of poetry in the yard. Who wrote it? I have no idea, maybe you know.

MAN AT WORK: It's fun to watch Leon Mandrake the Magician do his act. He manages to get maximum mileage out of his material and the audience seems to enjoy the opportunities to get into the act.

There are a few variations in the material since he was here last but the chief entertainment is to watch him in action with people. He steals watches and performs various bits of sleight of hand with great ease and glib patter. Mandrake will be at the Red Lion Inn for two weeks with a special show Sunday for children.

WOLF CRIES: Remember the great wolf controversy that was generated when a picture by columnist photographer Jim Ryan ran in the United States?

An American biologist said the picture was a fake but of course the wolf was real and now the fat is in the fire. Nasty letters have been flying and the accused David Nech of Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn., is really sorry for the trouble he caused.

In a letter to the Outdoor Photographers League general manager Ormal Sprungman, the biologist says "I am sorry, I have extended apologies to all concerned and now I lay at your mercy."

JET AWAY: Master chef John Bateman who directs chef training at the Nanaimo Vocational School is off to California. It is not really part of the brain drain. He will only be gone for a week.

Chef Bateman will speak to the convention of the American Culinary Federation at Anaheim. He will outline educational programs and policies in culinary training in British Columbia.

After he gets back it will be a rush to complete final details for the graduating class banquet July 14.

NO CLOWNS FOR HIM: On his way to catch the Shrine Circus with his children Tuesday evening Barry Gill saw an accident and stopped to give help.

While assisting he cut his leg and had to be taken to hospital. He missed the circus but did get a Good Joe Award from Saanich police.

Inspector Bob Peterson said "His help was appreciated. Not everyone stops to offer help at an accident. He deserves credit. It's a shame he missed the circus."

Man with Liver Problems Must Diet, Give Up Drinks

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Two years ago my husband was taken to the hospital with terrific pains on his right side, just below the chest.

The doctors told him he had an enlarged liver; also that the condition did not develop overnight and he should return to the doctor after leaving the hospital. They told him he should be thankful that he arrived at the hospital when he did.

They gave him a diet to follow, but he only stayed on it about two weeks. He frequently gets these pains now, and he says they go over to his left side. But he also says they are just gas pains.

Is an enlarged liver serious? I may add that he drinks alcoholic beverages. — Mrs. E.M.

An enlarged—meaning a diseased—liver can be very serious. It is perfectly possible that your husband's pains are "gas pains" induced by his failing liver. That, however, has really nothing to do with the matter.

Your Good Health

You've told me enough to indicate that your husband might, if he would go to the doctor immediately and follow instructions, keep his liver going for a few more years.

But if he keeps on pretending that it's only "gas pains" his health will go steadily downhill: misery, invalidism, death.

I hope it isn't already too late. But he must be examined, must follow his diet, and more than anything must stop all alcohol. Drinking is the worst thing he can do.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, 20, has had a constipation problem for the last four or five years. She is relieved only by taking medicines prescribed by her doctor. Other times, she is miserable. Will she always have to take medication for this stubborn problem? Could there be an obstruction in the bowel area? I am very much concerned — E.E.

Nothing in your letter indicates an obstruction — and I would think that your doctor would have suggested X-rays if he detected any suspicious sign. There are many causes of constipation involving diet, bowel habits, fluid intake — and sometimes the psychological anxiety of a person's believing that he "should" have movements according to some schedule.

Actually, individual needs vary considerably. Conforming to a person's true individual than using laxatives to try to need is much more important force a routine which does not suit the individual naturally.

ain," charged Eric Harrington, president of Canadian Vickers Shipyards Ltd. of Montreal.

"We have the skills, the equipment, the resources and the technical competence to build them right here in Canada. Yet, here we are wondering how we can keep our people working, scratching here and there, trying to turn up an order."

'DESERVES MORE'

H. C. Hawken, vice-president of Marine Industries Ltd. of Sorel, Que., said the potential employment level of existing Canadian shipyards is about 14,000 but they now employ about 8,000.

"Surely, an industry which employs this many, and which makes the substantial contribution to the gross national product, both in quantitative terms and technical competence... deserves more than short shrift from the Canadian government."

J. A. Wallace, general manager of Yarrows Ltd. of Victoria, said all the politicians are "running around with fever because 30 or 40 shipyard workers in Lauson are being laid off. They say nothing about the '800 or more laid off before" the campaign for the June 25 federal election began.

"And then in the next breath we hear that there are too many shipyards in Canada, that some have got to go."

George Black, general manager of Port Weller Dry Docks Ltd., asked: "What are they trying to do, dance on our grave?"

J. W. Hudson, executive vice-president of Burrard Dry Dock Co. Ltd. in Vancouver, said Canadian Pacific has ordered a cargo ship from a British yard, and that Seagram Shipping

Ltd. of Montreal plans to order two bulk carriers from the same builders.

"Now, just what are we supposed to do? You can't blame them for going abroad when they can save about 50 per cent... But who is this just society supposed to be for—British shipyard workers or Canadian?"

The only such incident so far occurred at Weldwood of Canada Ltd., at Vancouver where 30 nightshift workers honored a picket line set up by only two men. However, they returned to the job once the two men were persuaded to leave.

Originally, the IWA sought a 50-cent hourly increase for men earning a basic rate of $2.76, and the companies offered six cents, both on a one-year basis. There have been indications since that the IWA has rejected a 20-cent offer.

Wilson Breaks Lords Talks

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Wilson was reported to have decided Wednesday to break off talks with the Conservative party about reforming Britain's House of Lords and proceed alone with legislation to reorganize it, according to the Labor government's ideas.

A bill sponsored by Labor could abolish or severely curtail the legislative power of the hereditary peers, although they might retain the right to join in debates with the peers appointed for life from the ranks of eminent politicians and professional men.

PLAN OUTLINE

Wilson is to outline his plans to the House of Commons today. Political sources said the decision to undertake the reform without Conservative co-operation came in response to the government's defeat in the House of Lords Tuesday.

The traditional Conservative majority of hereditary peers asserted itself and voted against a government order tightening sanctions on rebellious Rhodesia.

The vote did not quash the order, but the Labor government was embarrassed on the international scene, especially since it introduced the proposal for sanctions at the United Nations and saw it through the Security Council.

Wilson is under pressure from a substantial group of Labor MPs to abolish the House of Lords entirely. The sources said he would not go that far.

Brandt

The Labor government has already committed itself to Lords reform. But during the last year leaders of the Labor, Liberal and Conservative parties have been meeting secretly to work out an agreed program.

This all-party group has been reported close to agreement, but not a hint of its terms has leaked out.

The government legislation Wilson outlines today is expected to be introduced in the next session of Parliament opening in the autumn.

GOOD MEASURE

It also is expected to draw in good measure on the agreement already reached by the all-party talks.

At present the House of Lords' major power is that of delaying legislation for only one year. Its Conservative majority could therefore delay any Lords' reform legislation passed by Labor's majority in Commons.

But the timetable would put the delaying period right in the middle of the campaign for the next general election of 1970 or 1971, and hand the Labor party the potential political issue of a fight between the peers and the people.

Britain Struggles To Patch Leaks

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government struggled Wednesday night to halt automobile and airline strikes, while railway chiefs acted to avert a threatened slowdown.

Developments were:

● Automobiles — Productivity Minister Barbara Castle appointed an inquiry team to investigate a dispute at the Ford auto plant where 378 women who sew car seat covers are striking for equal pay with men who do the same work. More than 5,000 workers were made idle by the dispute and the jobs of thousands more were threatened.

In another section of the industry, 100,000 jobs were in jeopardy as 23 maintenance men at a firm supplying essential component parts continued to strike for more pay.

● Airlines — Pilots and management asked Mrs. Castle to name an independent chairman to head talks on a four-day dispute which grounded all flights from London by British Overseas Airways Corp. planes. The pilots are seeking pay comparable to that paid by foreign airlines on routes served by BOAC.

● Rail — British railway management representatives made new proposals to leaders of two unions to avert a nationwide rail slowdown threatened for next week. Management also indicated a willingness to re-examine pay offers earlier rejected by the unions.

Franc First-Aid Sought

PARIS (UPI) — France appealed Wednesday for help from its five Common Market partners to rescue the French economy, crippled by six weeks of continuing strikes and violence.

Premier Georges Pompidou announced the decision to seek tariff concessions as part of an emergency first-aid program for floundering French industries.

As the nation prepared for a parliamentary election Sunday called by President de Gaulle in an effort to end the government crisis, two Paris news paper polls predicted the ruling Gaullist party would squeak through with slight gains.

The polls also predicted minor gains for Pierre Mendès-France's small Socialist party and slight losses for the Communists and non-communist left.

But No Berlin Letup

Crisis Predictions Refuted

BRONN (AP) — West German Foreign Minister Willy Brandt, after a long talk with the top Soviet official in East Germany, said Wednesday he did not foresee a new Berlin crisis. But he offered no hope for quick easing of the new restrictions on travel to West Berlin.

Brandt was asked at a news conference whether it could be assumed from his more than seven-hour session with Soviet Ambassador Pyotr Abramov Tuesday that a crisis like the 1948-49 Communist blockade of Berlin was in sight.

FIERMLY NEGATIVE

"Assuredly not," Brandt replied emphatically.

Brandt gave few details of the afternoon and evening he spent at Abramov's country house near East Berlin. But apparently he made no progress toward lifting the taxes and fees on Berlin-bound traffic imposed by East Germany as pressure against West German claims to West Berlin.

West Berlin is entirely surrounded by communist territory.

RUSSIANS TOLD

Brandt's Social Democratic party reported that the foreign minister told Abramov the Soviet-approved restrictions "are really harmful and are burdening efforts for East-West relaxation."

In his cautious statements to reporters, Brandt voiced the possibility of future meetings with Abramov, and thus a new channel between Bonn and Moscow, but said no such meetings had been arranged.

GERMANIC SLAP

The visit was considered a slap at the East German regime, which contends Bonn must deal with East Germany on such questions.

Brandt traveled by Soviet embassy car and his visit was in defiance of an East German ban on West German officials in its territory. The East Germans apparently knew nothing of the trip until Brandt was back in West Berlin.

West Germany and the Western Allies consider the Soviet Union, as a post-Second World War occupying power, responsible for guaranteeing free access to West Berlin.

Call for Caution

IF CANADIAN VOTERS accept the avowals of both the Conservative and Liberal leaders, it must be apparent that with respect to the administration of national affairs they propose very similar approaches.

In the present difficult economic circumstances each is determined on cautious and moderate government, very different from the spendthrift years which brought the country its current burden of taxation, inflation and commitments beyond its means.

On that basis, therefore, it would be wise to weigh the credibility of these two: Mr. Robert Stanfield, a long-time Tory of impeccable conservative background and inclination, and Mr. Pierre Trudeau, a newly-converted Grit of radical liberal association.

Which one of them, voters are entitled to ask, could be expected to move more surely and effectively along the conservative road which each admits must now be followed?

It can be assumed that Mr. Stanfield's fundamental moderation is a continuing characteristic.

Mr. Trudeau, on the other hand, has declared himself a pragmatist. There is no reason to doubt it. But he is adapting to a situation. And this is expediency. His policy relates to the circumstances and requirements of the present.

The Montreal Gazette very properly observes that Mr. Trudeau is "evidently convinced that, for the present time, conditions in Canada do not allow for radical policies."

He, like Mr. Stanfield, realizes that any government must walk slowly, as the philosopher says, to go far. Existing problems must be met and controlled, confidence in the economy must be restored, spending must be related to revenues and not to the strained tax potential, and so on.

In his pragmatism, Mr. Trudeau would conform from necessity rather than on principle, for it cannot be denied that in the past he has preached a very different political theory. He has long been known as a socialist intellectual, and presumably he still holds to those convictions he has never attempted to deny.

"Those who favor an essential moderation in government, not only in the country's present difficulties but as a general and continuing policy, have to make their choice in this campaign," the Montreal Gazette suggests.

They do indeed. They must choose between a man who has adopted a conservative line as a matter of expediency and one whose moderation is not related particularly to present difficulties, but is an endowment born of experience and character.

Precedent Is There

ON the grounds that investors in Canadian stocks get a 20 per cent income tax credit, Conservative leader Robert Stanfield is not without precedent in offering a tax relief to homeowners who are having to pay more than 7 per cent on their mortgages.

The estimated cost of $25,000,000 to the treasury would appear to be reasonable if it were confined to NHA or first mortgages on which the current rates are about 9 to 10 per cent, but it would certainly be far off the mark if the proposed income tax deduction included second mortgages or agreements for sale on which very much higher interest rates are now being charged.

Mr. Stanfield's explanation was that by allowing 90 per cent tax relief on all payments over 7 per cent, the homeowner paying 9 per cent on an $18,000 home under NHA would save $324 a year.

If, as is expected, the number of new houses built this year comes to about 140,000 the Conservative leader's own figuring would work out to a maximum of about $40,000,000 in tax relief.

As there is some hope that as soon as the U.S. gets its own economic house in order, there will be a drop in interest rates, it would appear that Mr. Stanfield's concession might be no more than a temporary one to bridge the high interest rate which is now making it impossible, other than by excessively high mortgage rates, for the average person to set up his own home.

It might be claimed that 7 per cent is a good round figure on which to work out a first mortgage agreement over a long period of years, but it is a much different matter if the proposed tax relief field is to be opened to those who seek to extend their borrowing to the full extent of the equity, and by doing so pay interest in secondary loans at 14 per cent and over.

The government could not possibly stand up to this form of home purchasing. There would have to be a percentage limit to the tax concession—possibly not more than 3 per cent—equivalent to a 10 per cent mortgage. Beyond that the responsibility would have to be on the homeowner himself.

To the general argument that if investors get a tax concession on owning Canadian equities, they should also get a concession on their investment in their own homes, there cannot be too great exception, within the limitations already outlined.

Voting Example

SOME OBSERVERS think they have discerned in the current federal election campaign a greater public interest than usual, a popular excitement and involvement beyond normal. With both major parties under new leadership, with an atmosphere of change, it seems probable they are right. The proof or disproof of the increased participation of Canadians in the political life of their country, however, awaits the final voting figures, with due allowance for the growth of the population of voting age.

There may be some confirmation of extraordinary interest in the gains in the numbers of advance-poll voters, over the last election. The example in the Greater Victoria area, where advance balloting more than doubled the tally in the 1965 election, appears typical.

Against this sharp increase must be weighed the fact that the previous election was in November, and this one is in the fresh summer, with vacations taking voters out of their ridings.

Even so, it is remarkable that so many with thoughts on their minds of imminently "getting away from it all" would trouble to vote. If the advance poll turnout is not positive proof that people are more than usually wrapped up in the campaign and its outcome, it at least sets an example for those who can't get away from it all just yet.

"Trudeaumania? Dalton, I'm still trying to find the definition of charisma!"

To the Campaigner the Crowd's the Thing But He's Tempted to Distort the Picture

By RICHARD JACKSON, Columnist Ottawa Bureau

THINK of something that seems as all important to a political party leader or to his constituency candidate, when the Great Man comes to make his campaign call, as the size of the crowd.

Ponder from this moment until the last ballot has been counted Tuesday night, and you'll think of nothing to match it in the political mind.

For nothing can get the metropolitan leader so steamed up as the press corps travelling with either Prime Minister Trudeau or Conservative Chief Stanfield, as to underestimate his crowd-pulling power.

And few things can give the national campaign team so great a lift as to read that their man drew 6,000 in Winnipeg when his main contender had only 5,000 in the same anti-urbanism just last week.

It doesn't have to be one of the big population centres, either. Powerful lobbies for steel, meat, textiles and at least 20 other commodities are taking advantage of this mood to try to ram through quota systems cutting back principal imports from abroad.

Quotas would bring immediate reprisal from nations that buy American products and are responsible for the large favourable trade balance only recently jeopardized by rising American prices. It would be a perfect example of the kind of false self-sufficiency that in the 1930s helped to bring on the world-wide depression. The Smoot-Hawley tariff of 1930, passed over the warning of every reputable economist in the country, prepared the way for the blow-up.

Although no quotas has yet been imposed — the Senate adopted a textile quota amendment, later eliminated — more than 60 nations have entered formal protests with the state department at the threat of such barriers. The folly of passing these "keep out" signs would seem to be so evident and the machinations of the lobbies so obvious that the effort must certainly fail. Yet with the escalation of the Vietnam war and the rising casualty lists, along with the pressing needs of the cities, quotas can be made to look like protection of the American worker from the competition of underpaid workers in Europe and Asia. This is the old cry, with its strong isolationist overtones of "Save America from foreign competition."

(In his five campaigns, Dietrich used to publicly denounce members of the touring press party for what he chronically complained was gross undercounting.)

The size of the crowd, though, is still the big thing with the campaign organizers, national and local.

It must be a good, warm, responsive crowd, but most of all it must be big, bigger than "they" had. Or, if "they" are still to come to town, it must be so big as to defy all efforts to outsize it.

This being so, to get that biggest-of-all crowd, they'll go all the way — all the way out along the highways in four directions as far as 100 miles, or as far as they have to go, to be in the bodies.

It's an accepted way of trying to outdo the crowdsmanship of the other people.

Spurious Statistics

They make it sound like a personal invitation from Mr. Trudeau — and who knows who might get kissed — which is calculated to make it all pretty irresistible.

And when Mrs. So-and-So exclaims in wild anticipation that she'd JUST LOVE to go, then she's asked to call and invite all her friends and relations and ask THEM to come, too.

It's a sort of telephone chain letter, and among the wonders it can work is the mob scene.

Powerful Lobbies Battle For American Isolationism

By MARQUIS CHILDS

IN the intransigent, impatient, suspicious mood of the Congress anything with the word foreign attached to it is in trouble. Powerful lobbies for steel, meat, textiles and at least 20 other commodities are taking advantage of this mood to try to ram through quota systems cutting back principal imports from abroad.

Quotas would bring immediate reprisal from nations that buy American products and are responsible for the large favourable trade balance only recently jeopardized by rising American prices. It would be a perfect example of the kind of false self-sufficiency that in the 1930s helped to bring on the world-wide depression. The Smoot-Hawley tariff of 1930, passed over the warning of every reputable economist in the country, prepared the way for the blow-up.

Although no quotas has yet been imposed — the Senate adopted a textile quota amendment, later eliminated — more than 60 nations have entered formal protests with the state department at the threat of such barriers. The folly of passing these "keep out" signs would seem to be so evident and the machinations of the lobbies so obvious that the effort must certainly fail. Yet with the escalation of the Vietnam war and the rising casualty lists, along with the pressing needs of the cities, quotas can be made to look like protection of the American worker from the competition of underpaid workers in Europe and Asia. This is the old cry, with its strong isolationist overtones of "Save America from foreign competition."

Resistance to military aid, notably by anti-Vietnam members of the Senate foreign relations committee, has made the going rougher for any foreign aid. Chairman J. William Fulbright, long an advocate of multilateralism as against direct American aid, was unable to get approval by his committee for $150,000,000 for the International Development Association, a subsidiary of the World Bank that makes "soft" loans to developing countries. Nor could he get the committee to approve an appropriation for the Asian Bank.

Another attempt will be made. But Fulbright is back in Arkansas in a rough primary fight against a hard-line segregationist, Jim Johnson, who is attacking the foreign relations chairman for his foreign involvements. Perhaps not even for the critical vote will Fulbright return to Washington prior to the July 30 primary.

Foreign aid this year got a greatly reduced appropriation totaling $2.3 billion. The White House is asking $2.9 billion for the coming fiscal year, with little chance that anything like this amount will be approved. Such is the mood on Capitol Hill that the best hope appears to be a continuing resolution authorizing the foreign aid administration to spend at the present rate through December. That would avoid a showdown, leaving the issue of aid to the tender mercies of a new Congress.

The warning signals are up as impatient, irascible voters show every inclination to punish the aid for the discontents of a time of trouble. That is the real explanation why so much unfinished business will be swept under the rug.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive Communist MP for Montreal, was sentenced to six years in prison and barred from Parliament 22 years ago today — in 1946 — when convicted of conspiring to communicate wartime secrets to Russia. Rose was released in 1961, and went to Eastern Europe. His Commons seat was declared vacant and his citizenship was revoked in 1957.

1948 — A typhoon and accompanying flood in southern Japan killed 105.

1959 — A storm in Northumberland Strait between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island took the lives of 35 fishermen.

First World War: 1915 — Italian troops captured Cortellazzo; Austro-Hungarian forces, taking most of the Montello ridge, American forces drove Germans out of a pocket on the north side of Belleau Wood near Chateau Thierry.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today — in 1943 — RAF Lancaster bombers obliterated the industrial city of Friedrichshafen in southwestern Germany, crippling the largest factory in the Reich.

Malta received King George VI who came from North Africa aboard the cruiser Aurora with an escort of four destroyers. The Russians claimed killing of 5,000 Germans in seven weeks.

"If they had to do their peace talking here, maybe they'd get somewhere."

Trudeau Commands 'The Same Old Gang'

ALTHOUGH I agree that Mr. Trudeau is a very different man from Mr. Pearson, and that he will take a new look at things, I cannot see that "everything is going to be different" the next time if only we give the Liberals a majority. After all, Mr. Trudeau cannot be a dictator. He will still have to depend on backing from the same old Liberal Party that Mr. Pearson led.

How much loyalty can he expect from previous loyal followers of Mr. Pearson? I should think that he must have already antagonized many of them by his insinuation that Mr. Pearson was entirely responsible for all the mistakes and failures of the previous administration.

When he was elected to the leadership of the Liberal Party, Mr. Trudeau displayed undue haste in getting rid of Mr. Pearson, not even allowing the House time to give Mr. Pearson some form of testimonial to his work as prime minister. Nor did he allow Parliament to proceed with important legislation already under consideration. We had all to sit back and wait for Mr. Trudeau to be re-elected before the House can be allowed to get down to the country's business again.

It would appear that Mr. Trudeau was more anxious to assure himself and the Liberals another five years in power than to attend to the welfare of the country. An election at this particular time was unnecessary. Pending legislation, which was not of a controversial nature, should have been cleared up first.

Dubious Precept
I have read Mr. Wilson's excellent and sensibly-marshalled letter in your issue of June 14. It is a refreshing reply to Mr. Paine's "diatribe" which latter smacks, to my mind, of out-of-date and reactionary "smug minority" philosophy.

It would be a pity if, in Canada, we follow the American (and Gaulist) method of naming as "Communist" any views with which we disagree.

Mr. Paine could do worse than visit, and study, Sweden and New Zealand — two countries which are in the van of social evolution.

Among other things, I've heard Pierre Elliott Trudeau likened to Nero, Marlon Brando, Humphrey Bogart, Abraham Lincoln and Winston Churchill, not to mention Roosevelt and The Inscrutable East!

Academy Awards notwithstanding, I'll take my Foo Man Chu from the dime store novels and leave the inscrutable East to Ho Chi Minh.

As for "charisma" give me a statesman who'll run my country properly and spend my tax dollars wisely and I don't care if he looks like Phyllis Diller, Mickey Mouse and Jerry Lewis rolled into one!

Or have we reached George Orwell's Big Brother world of being controlled by the "think" machines of the mass communications media?

Long, Steep Climb
At the time the 575 Old Age Pension was established (Oct. 1, 1963) the Social Security Tax was raised to 4 per cent to finance it, and the Consumers Price Index stood at 131. Since then, the index has risen to 154.2 as of May, 1968. In doing so, the 575 pension has been reduced in purchasing value to approximately $65, plus 2 per cent (81.50). At least the 2 per cent recognizes the need for an escalation clause, but falls far short of restoring the October, 1963 value of the Old Age Pension.

Of course, any cost of living index used in regard to Old Age Pensions would have to include rent, food and clothes, etc., and these items have certainly risen more than 2 per cent over the last five years.

Total Canadian labor costs for the year 1963 were $11.8 billion and for the year 1967 were $2.7 billion. This has raised the base for taxes substantially (50 per cent). The 4 per cent Social Security Tax must be providing the government with considerably more revenue than it did five years ago. The point of all this is that wages, taxes, and Consumer Price Index are all riding the same escalator. Isn't it time the Old Age Pensioners were taken aboard?

Fading Forecast
The federal government, in its mysterious way, some while ago moved Victoria Marine Radio Station from Gordon Head out to some remote headland up the west coast.

No doubt by faithful Liberals this was counted among the wonders performed by Ottawa; but the ordinary Victorian, in search of a marine weather forecast, would need the vocabulary of Shmuel the son of Gera, or Lars Forssena, or even of Dr. Slop (who I trust is included in Grade 12 reading) adequately to express his opinion. For the broadcasts come through very dimly, if at all; the background noise is like an inebriated sawmill, and the quality of transmission often suggests that the announcer has stuffed his mouth with cotton wool.

A mysterious feature of these forecasts, since our station went west, is that the reading (when audible) is apt to be interrupted by the mystic words "Stand by one," whereupon the sawdust symphony prevails undisturbed while the announcer presumably attends to urgent business — possibly re-considering his transmitter, or saluting a cow blown over the cliff....

Oddly enough, when the broadcast is resumed, it tends to trail away miserably into chuff-chuff-wuff-chuff. This strange ritual has been known to occur more than once in a single forecast. Perhaps a psychiatrist could unravel the basic mechanism, or a graph might be drawn relating it to wind speed, which would support the cow hypothesis.

Now that an election is upon us, dare we hope for better things?

Indian 'First'
The article by Trudy Kemp, "Athletic Indian Girl Brings Honor to Race," in your June 1 issue was of great interest to me as I spent the years 1952-65 as a high school teacher (20 per cent Indian students) in St. Paul, Alberta (still marked on some maps as "St. Paul des Metis.") This northeastern Alberta city came into prominence during centennial year, and it was admitted by Commissioner Fisher during an Ottawa broadcast that no other Canadian area had any comparable projects. The "birthday" celebrations easily fitted into a long-range plan of progress, most of which encompassed the social and economic integration of the multi-racial inhabitants — French Canadians, Ukrainians, Poles, Indians, Metis, British, etc.

My sympathy with Miss Kemp's attractive description of her Indian girl's will to conquer despite her native birthright is mirrored in the difficulties and handicaps which are the lot of the majority of Albertan Indians. The latter are gradually, around St. Paul at least, being given the status of equal citizenship by a far-sighted school board, a virile Chamber of Commerce, a progressive city council headed by a long-time, enthusiastic mayor, and most important, an understanding citizenry. This civil rights program, I am certain, has come about because of Indian youth in the last decade has, like Miss Underwood, matched the efforts of its non-native peers. When nothing in the program could be done about my rights to enjoy reasonable weather, I regretfully took my leave.

My purpose in commenting on the article is not to praise St. Paul, but, if I may, to pick a bone with just one item in the article.... "As far as we know, my brother is the only Indian Canadian working in a bank in Canada." I offer the argument that in 1965, I was instrumental (so I like to think) in breaking down the barriers of prejudice by obtaining for Eric Large, a young Cree Indian, a position with the Toronto-Dominion Bank of St. Paul. I also believe he was the first native boy in the area to be accepted by the Jaycees.

Should Miss Underwood's brother have joined a bank before July 1965, I will concede the argument... second place still has its glory!

Pensions
Last August the Liberal government said that they would raise ex-civil servants' pensions and back-date them when they returned from their vacation.

When they did return, they said the government couldn't afford it now. They didn't say that when they gave themselves $4,500.

When the Canada Pension came into effect they said we are giving old age pensioners the pension at 65 and 60. They did, but they took off $500 exemption from $1,500 to $1,000. They gave old age pensioners a $150 cost of living bonus. The six-buck boys were battling 1000 per cent.

A couple of months ago it was "Stop Trudeau! Now the same people are saying 'Let's go with Trudeau!'"

What about the 20-per-cent raise for the St. Lawrence Seaway people and the millions they were going to save on insurance?

What about all the high ranking officers of the forces that were forced to retire? I don't think this country could stand another four years of this kind of government.

Taxes, Shipyards, Drugs—The NDP Case

Colonist Forum

Richardson

By DR. HARVEY RICHARDSON
NDP Candidate, Victoria Riding

Canadian workers are being heavily taxed while land speculators and stock market manipulators escape paying taxes on more than $5 billion yearly.

The New Democratic Party is the lone supporter of the 1964 Carter report on taxation which advocates people be taxed according to total income regardless of source.

People earning less than $10,000 a year would pay less taxes while high money free loaders would be making their fair contributions.

This would increase the country's tax revenue by hundreds of millions.

The Conservatives openly oppose the Carter proposals, and the Liberals ignore it.

In Victoria the Liberal government has pensioners struggling for existence on $1,300 a year and still forces them to pay income tax. Meanwhile the country's land speculators—the main cause of the increase in housing costs—are raking in tax-free millions.

Lack of Liberal government control forces Canadians to pay the world's highest drug prices.

For instance prescription drugs which enter the country at $1.32 for 1000 tablets have been sold to drug stores at $67.60 wholesale. To this the druggist adds his markup.

Prime Minister Trudeau reneged on a federal bill which would have drastically reduced drug prices by allowing fair competition by Canadian drug importers.

In Victoria we have the ridiculous situation of our shipyard workers receiving unemployment cheques.

Victoria shipyard workers have higher productivity, greater skills, and better working habits than those in Eastern Canadian and United States yards.

If Victoria yards had steady work they could compete with Eastern yards despite current higher wages.

Old line parties refuse to engage in economic planning to give our shipyard workers a decent living. Instead our craftsmen must live on unemployment insurance or leave the country to find work.

The NDP is the only party which advocates long term economic planning on a national scale involving both private and public corporations.

This policy works in many countries. For example Norway with a population of only 4,000,000 has already built ships in excess of 150,000 tons, and has plans for a 1,000,000-ton super cargo carrier.

Liberal and Conservative parties when in power continually find themselves facing crisis after crisis while we are left with nightmarish bureaucracy and staggering national debt.

Each year about $1,400,000,000 in taxpayer's money is poured down the drain in interest payments on the government's debt.

A tiny fraction of this amount invested in joint public-private yards to build super ships for a Canadian merchant marine to use Canada's superports would stop this manpower squandering.

Some $30,000,000 would be sufficient to set up one major modern yard.

Mr. Trudeau says he will bring a just society. I say we can't have a just society unless the gap between rich and poor is reduced.

NDP policy is to have economic planning with high production and a fair distribution.

I maintain that both Liberal and Conservative parties represent the interests of the wealthy and powerful. It is from this group the parliamentary committee on election expenses found donors made gifts to Liberal campaign coffers of up to $75,000 each.

Donations to the Conservative funds still remain secret, even though the committee recommended that "public confidence in political financing should be strengthened by requiring candidates and parties to disclose their incomes and expenditures."

The Liberal government over the years has given lip service to the committee recommendations but has done nothing.

The NDP is the only party that co-operated with the committee, voluntarily making its books available for scrutiny.

Compare the records of Conservative and NDP leaders while in provincial government.

Mr. Stanfield's Conservative government in Nova Scotia left that province in a miserable, depressed condition, in dire need of assistance from the federal government.

Mr. Douglas' NDP-CCF government in Saskatchewan from 1944-64 made the following improvements:

- Piloted medicare and hospital insurance, to be followed years later in some parts of the country by the federal government.
- Set low cost car and fire insurance.
- Raised average income in Saskatchewan to the third highest in Canada and well above the national average.
- Changed the economy from total agricultural dependence to 60 per cent industrial without a sellout to the United States.
- Has the most progressive labor laws in North America.

It did all this while reducing the provincial debt from $155,000,000 to less than $18,000,000.

The NDP knows what it is doing. The most progressive and civilized countries in the world thrive on similar policies.

... 'Tis for Thee I Serve

By GEORGE BURNHAM
Independent Candidate, Victoria Riding

My God, my Queen, my country, 'tis for thee, and the city I adore, I serve.

Many people wonder and many ask me why I came to do my part in this election. My career and my life has been devoted — to serve, because I was taught to love my neighbor as myself.

In my early days I passed exams at school and my father said to me, go to work. I was 13 years old and began in a coal mine and, digging coal for the navy, we worked below at varying depths, some half mile deep.

In 1914 when war broke out on August 4, the call to serve my country came. I was a volunteer and was soon in uniform ready for Flanders' fields.

After the second battle of Ypres I was among many Canadians there, and was associated with them in many battles throughout the war. Ypres, Arras, Somme, Arras, Messines, Lens, Ypres again, Passchendaele, and on to the last day when the whistle blew and soon I was on my way to Canada to live.

Arriving at Quebec in September of 1920, and bound for the West I had a useful career and when war was declared in 1939, I was ready to serve Canada for another five years.

I received my honorable discharge in Vancouver in 1945 and settled down and served on the old Prince George to Alaska, but shipping was not for me. I returned to the land and was soon at the University of B.C. giving landscape to the students for three years.

Next I found myself on Vancouver Island for four years, beautifying the countryside at Jordan River. Returning to the mainland to private business — first landscaping, then at my old trade, cooking, for a while running my own cafe, I then got into politics once more.

My early days with David Lloyd George, Asquith, Churchill, Baldwin and others. I have a wide experience as a worker and in 1962 I was a candidate in Burnaby-Coquitlam, and learned the art of meeting your opponent on the platform, face to face.

My life as a miner and teacher too, army life in two wars, cooking, both in the field and at school, landscape, taking prizes in my early years in England and here on Vancouver Island in the 50s at Honeycomb Bay, a former Scout with Lord Baden-Powell, a member of the board of trade and also the chamber of commerce at Sooke, Jordan River and also scoutmaster there.

Not forgetting a life of charity, I am proud of my record here and throughout Canada. I have travelled the country living with the Indians and the French Canadians and serving with them overseas. My life and the experience gained is of great value to you.

In good health and happiness, I offer to you all the great and wide knowledge that God has been so gracious to me, to love and serve you with all my heart.

Please feel free to bring forward your problems and to make the city of Victoria and the province of British Columbia a better place to live in. Peace and progress for you — my God, my Queen, my country, ever and always — I serve.

Pensions, housing, building, a good organizer, sportsman, I have studied politics from the grass roots at Ottawa. The house of parliament is very familiar to me. As a legislator from its implementation. A comrade all the way and above all, a Christian. We will lift up His royal banner and keep Canada a first-class nation before all men.

We will remember them, my comrades, in the words of our general, we will march onward to victory and preserve our country against the foe and build one country, worthy of all good Canadian citizens, to live and love one another for evermore. There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done. There are thousands to prophesy failure. There are thousands to point out, to you, one by one. The dangers that wait to assail you. But, just buckle right in with a bit of a grin, Then take off your coat and go to it. Just start in to sing, as you tackle the thing That cannot be done, and you'll do it. V — for victory. It can be done.

Majority Sees Grit Victory

The Regenstreif Survey

By PETER REGENSTREIF

The Canadian electorate expects the Liberals to capture the June 25 federal election.

Over 60 per cent of a national sample of eligible voters interviewed in their homes from coast to coast thinks the Liberals will win. Only 20 per cent believes the Conservatives will form a government.

Even the Atlantic provinces — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield's home grounds — predict a Liberal victory although only by a tiny margin of 4 per cent.

The sample was asked the following question: "Regardless of your own preference, which party do you think has the best chance of winning the coming federal election?"

	National	Atlantic	Quebec	Ontario	Prairies	B.C.
Liberal	62	44	61	65	70	64
Conservative	29	40	25	30	28	33
NDP	2	—	1	4	2	3
Social Credit	1	1	2	—	—	—
Not sure	15	15	11	15	12	19

Only half of those intending to vote Conservative calculate that their party will win. In contrast, 62 per cent of those voting Liberal expect a Trudeau victory on June 25. Moreover, 62 per cent of NDPers, 48 per cent of Socreds and 54 per cent of those who are still undecided predict that the Liberals will win.

	Intend to vote: Liberal	Conservative	NDP	Social Credit	Undecided Prediction:
Liberal	53	36	63	48	54
Conservative	6	50	15	23	13
NDP	2	1	4	2	2
Social Credit	—	—	—	15	—
Not sure	9	15	19	7	31

* Less than 1 per cent.

These figures indicate that if a bandwagon develops, it will favor the Liberals. The "undecided" group is especially important in this connection.

Locusts On March

ROME (Reuters)—A plague of locusts darkening the sky on both coasts of the Red Sea is threatening to eat its way through 40 countries from India to West Africa.

A UN emergency campaign has started in the deserts of Saudi Arabia, Yemen, Ethiopia and the Somali Republic. A swarm extending over 250 square miles has already been seen.

The number of locusts in such a swarm can number 25,000,000 and weigh about 45,000 tons. A ton of locusts eats as much food in one day as 250 persons.

Marchand Asks Ship Guarantee

QUEBEC (CP) — Manpower Minister Marchand has proposed that both company and union representatives agree to a clause in ship repair contracts for work at nearby Lauson that will allow the shipyard to close down within 24 hours if workers engage in slowdown tactics.

After a meeting with union representatives, Marchand said the clause should be applied to repair work on the ship New Labrador, which it is hoped will reopen the George T. Davis shipyard at Lauson.

LABOR COSTS

The Confederation of National Trade Unions, which represents the 1,000 unemployed shipyard workers, said Wednesday it is prepared to sign a contract for the ship's repair if the federal government agrees to pay costs of material and labor.

Marchand has said repairs will be carried out on the ship whether or not the contract is accepted by the interests involved.

Repairs on the New Labrador would employ some 30 to 40 men for several weeks.

FROM HALIFAX

The New Labrador arrived here from Halifax last Friday, on orders from Marchand, and is awaiting agreement by the factions involved.

The George T. Davis shipyard was closed down June 8 by its new owner, Canada Steamship Lines Ltd., which purchased the yard last March. The original owner had contracted to refit and repair the New Labrador.

The workers were told 10 days ago that all contracts would be transferred to Marystown, N.B., site of a modern shipyard.

Labor Threat Clears Great Lakes Lanes

MONTREAL (CP) — Shipping companies worked through Wednesday to clear ships out of the Great Lakes before the eastern end of the St. Lawrence seaway was shut early today.

A shipping agent said some of the 70 ocean-going vessels now in the lakes would be trapped. A strike by 1,300 Canadian seaway workers is scheduled to start at 8 a.m. Friday.

Convention Agency Bill $51,000 Per

An agency to stimulate convention business for Victoria would cost about $31,000 a year, directors of the Victoria Visitors Bureau were told Wednesday.

The cost figures will be part of an information budget which will be forwarded to a chamber of commerce-sponsored study group looking into the whole question of a convention centre for the city.

President S. M. Booker

stressed the study group is made up of representatives from all walks of life and is not chamber-oriented. Included in the $31,000 is a salary of $15,000 a year for a top-flight salesman and $16,950 for advertising.

Earlier, in a brief to city council, the visitors bureau stressed such promotion work must be done years before the city ever gets a convention centre if there is to be a steady flow of business when it is established.

Stanfield Accuses Liberals of Distortion in Quebec

the night, was more for convenience than anything else.

But Conservatives were pleased with the symbolism—a party triumph in Quebec—Stanfield, who will campaign in Montreal Saturday, is devoting at least three days of the last week before the June 25 vote to this province.

He spoke in four sizable communities south of the St. Lawrence Wednesday. Rain kept crowds light at Jacques-Cartier, Cowansville and St. Hyacinthe.

At Drummondville, an audience estimated by police at 800 stood cheering in a downpour as Stanfield spoke from a tiny circular platform on a lamp post in a parking lot.

His daughter Sarah made brief speeches in French at the Jacques-Cartier and Drummondville city halls, where crowds of about 100 gathered.

Stanfield spoke to about 150 adults in a high school auditorium at Jacques-Cartier, where Conservatives are trying to unseat Postmaster General Jean-Pierre Cote.

He said Prime Minister Trudeau had destroyed in the last eight weeks the constitutional goodwill built up at conferences in the last year.

A vote for the Conservatives was one for constitutional dialogue. The alternative was the "dangerous monologue" being offered by the Liberals.

Heward Grafftey, one of eight Conservatives elected in Quebec in 1965, introduced Stanfield at Cowansville as a leader who offered consultation rather than confrontation.

Elk Lake

The provincial government several years ago gave Resthaven approval to start planning a 200-bed hospital near Elk Lake because of the run-down condition of its present facilities.

Why the sudden switch? The Agnew, Peckham report states that the entire plant at St. Joseph's is either obsolete or of questionable modernity and would need total replacement in the near future.

St. Joseph's had been thinking of building a new hospital on the adjacent property of St. Ann's Academy. The site probably would be almost equivalent to that of the existing hospital's 428 beds.

LARGE NUMBER OF BEDS

However, providing hospital services now is an exceedingly expensive enterprise. The cost of operating rooms, with all of the equipment that is needed for the new medicine, now runs about $60 a square foot, for example.

For maximum use of this outlay of public funds, such services need to be accompanied by a large number of beds.

Hospital authorities now see a 400-bed centre, such as would have been the new St. Joseph's, and even more so a 200-bed hospital such as would have been the new Resthaven, inefficient units.

BEST PLANT NEEDED

In addition, there is the problem of attracting medical staff.

To get the best doctors, a hospital must have the best plant; the smaller the hospital, the fewer opportunities it has to provide the best facilities and thus perform the most exciting medicine.

It was not clear Wednesday what all of this means to Royal Jubilee, and whether the regional committee would also do a switch on the Agnew, Peckham recommendation that it receive about $14,000,000 worth of improvements and additions.

TEST OF INTERESTS

There also was no indication whether the committee feared the government's freeze on plans for Royal Jubilee's new laboratory was an attitude that may be extended to plans for the Elk Lake hospital.

Several sources in recent weeks have hinted that the Oak Bay byelection, scheduled for July 15, could turn into a test of the government's interest in local hospital issues, including the destiny of the new Eric Martin Institute, a 160-bed mental health centre.

Hospitals are likely to stimulate political reflexes elsewhere in the Greater Victoria area.

Invasion Team Pleads Guilty

PORT AU PRINCE (AP)—Ten accused members of an invasion team dropped by plane into Haiti last month listened Wednesday as a court-appointed lawyer entered guilty pleas to murder charges against them. No sentence was passed.

Central Saanich and Sidney have a pronounced affinity for Resthaven, their community hospital for many years, and they likely will not want to see it submerged by regional plans.

At the same time, a 650-bed hospital at Elk Lake comes close to killing any proposal for a new hospital in the Colwood area. Those people also will be voting in the regional referendum.

Like voting in the regional referendum would be the residents of the Gulf Islands, whose Lady Minto hospital at Ganges was described by Agnew, Peckham as adequate for present needs.

WITHDRAW MISSION

Sources stressed that the transfer of St. Joseph's management to the Elk Lake hospital does not mean the new centre will be a Catholic institution. The present St. Joseph's is owned by the Sisters of St. Ann.

This means that the Sisters of St. Ann, which opened St. Joseph's 52 years ago, may be withdrawing from their hospital mission or will stay with the present centre when it turns into an extended care institution.

Michael Griffin, deputy chairman of St. Joseph's board of management, said Wednesday's report of the new Elk Lake hospital was a surprise. The hospital already had hired the Agnew, Peckham firm to do some long-range planning for itself.

COMES AS SURPRISE

"As for the St. Joseph's administration being moved from the hospital, that too comes as a surprise. All I can say is I am sure whoever is in charge of administration, Greater Victoria will continue to receive the finest quality of hospital care and administration."

A peculiar aspect of Wednesday's hospital developments is that they coincided in many ways with a report last November that St. Joseph's was going to have the new hospital at Elk Lake.

At that time, it was hotly denied by the Hospitals Planning Council, an organization whose membership generally transferred to that of the new hospitals advisory committee.

FROM SUBCOMMITTEE

Mayor Curtis stressed that the proposal for a 650-bed Elk Lake hospital was from a subcommittee of an advisory committee to the regional board.

He also said the description of its location at Elk Lake was "in general terms" and it would be finally settled by the regional board, "possibly quite apart from the wishes of the hospital people."

"It will have to be somewhere between the heavily and lightly populated areas of the Saanich Peninsula."

"A large hospital generates urbanization. You simply can't suddenly drop an institution of that size into an area. It would be chaotic."

The local share of new hospital construction is about 40 per cent of the total cost, which means the taxpayers of Greater Victoria would have to authorize a contribution of $11,000,000 toward a $25,000,000 project.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK:

Roast Cornish Game Hens

4 game hens, about 1 1/4 lbs. each
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup dry white wine
2 tablesp. dried tarragon
4 cloves garlic
Salt and pepper
Garlic salt
1 bunch watercress

Early in Day:

Make basting sauce. In saucepan, melt butter; add wine, 1 tablesp. dried tarragon.
In each hen place 1 clove garlic, about 1/2 teasp. dried tarragon sauce; refrigerate.

About 1 Hour Before Serving

Heat oven to 450 degrees. In large shallow open pan, without rack, roast hens 45 minutes or until well browned, basting several times with basting sauce.

To Serve:

Arrange birds on bed of watercress on serving platter; pour drippings from pan over hens. Makes 4 servings

Illegal Turns Turn Costly

Beginning Monday, police will issue tickets instead of warning notices to motorists who make illegal left turns at Blanshard and View, Hillside and Quadra, and Douglas and Gorge.

Signs banning left turns between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. Monday to Friday have been posted for a week and city police have stationed auxiliary policemen at the intersections to warn offending motorists.

The turns are barred for motorists headed east on Hillside to go north on Quadra, east on View to go north on Blanshard and east on Gorge to go north on Douglas.

City traffic inspector Richard Berry said most of the offences have been committed at View and Blanshard where between 60 and 70 violations occur daily.

Both Sides Fire Accusations In Paris Parley

From AP

U.S. Ambassador Averell Harriman and North Vietnamese Minister Xuan Thuy accused each other's government Wednesday of blocking progress at the ninth session of the Vietnamese peace talks in Paris.

Harriman said Thuy had "consistently misconstrued" U.S. policy in saying the United States wanted to keep Vietnam permanently divided and turn it into a military base. He said it was hard to believe the North Vietnamese government actually thought that.

"If it does it is a grotesque distortion of American objectives and a formidable obstacle to progress here."

LEAD ACCUSED

Thuy accused President Johnson of escalating the war while saying he is de-escalating it.

"The same facts prove that not only has the United States failed to show goodwill to bring these official conversations to results, but also it has created obstacles that prevent the conversations from progressing."

But in a 40-minute coffee break—the longest so far—they spoke amiably on subjects which the U.S. spokesman declined to disclose.

LARGE SESSIONS

A spokesman told reporters the U.S. has repeatedly asked for private talks as a better way of dealing with the tough issues than large sessions which are fully reported afterward.

The official part of the talks lasted three hours. At the midpoint, refreshments were served.

Nguyen Thiem Le, North Vietnamese spokesman, said that Thuy and Le Duc Tho, the North Vietnamese politician member sent recently from Hanoi, went over and talked with Harriman.

FIRST OF DAY

Thuy's speech was the first of the day. His spokesman described it as largely devoted to "unmasking" President Johnson's statement that the United States was de-escalating the war. Air raids on North Vietnam rose to 4,700 in May from 2,500 in March he said.

The U.S. spokesman said afterwards that the number of strikes had increased because the weather had cleared and because of increased North Vietnamese military activity in the area still being hit, the parachute below the 19th parallel.

AIR FORCE

Meanwhile, the U.S. Air Force in South Vietnam has launched an investigation of reports of Northern helicopters operating near the demilitarized zone. A U.S. general speculated they might be ferrying Soviet Styx missiles for attacks on warships of the U.S. and her allies.

The Styx was used by the Egyptians to sink the Israeli destroyer Eilat last October.

PERSONAL LOOK

Gen. Creighton Abrams, U.S. military commander in Vietnam, and Gen. Cao Van Vien, chief of South Vietnam's joint general staff, flew to the northern war zone to make a personal investigation.

"We've heard rumors about the Styx," said a U.S. command spokesman, "but we've no hint that they may be correct."

Military sources in Washington said there was no evidence to suggest the Russians have furnished North Vietnam with Styx missiles.

LOGICAL THING

A U.S. major-general said that "the most logical thing they can be doing is lifting in Russian missiles like the ones the Egyptians used against the Israeli destroyer."

In another development, U.S. officials denied a claim that a gas officially described non-lethal has killed at least 350 people in Vietnam. Dr. Stephen Rose, a research biochemist at London university, described the gas to members of Parliament as a harassing agent similar to concentrated tear gas and known as CS.

Test for Laundry Workers

Small Victoria Dispute Could Involve Others

Negotiations are continuing in an attempt to avert a small strike of 35 people in Victoria that could — once started — develop into a double-barrelled test of strength on the part of organized labor.

At Canadian Linen Supply Co. Ltd., 841 View, the stakes would be:

● A drive by an international union to make headway in the laundry industry.

● A test in inter-union support.

The powerful Teamsters' Union, although still officially on the outs with the rest of the labor family, stands ready to support the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

LITTLE WEIGHT

A strike by the retail, wholesale union would have little weight without Teamsters' support. Drivers delivering the firm's laundry belong to the Teamsters.

"The Teamsters' policy has always been to respect a legal picket line," Ben McCrone said from his Vancouver office Wednesday.

Mr. McCrone is vice-president of the Teamsters' Joint Council and secretary-treasurer of the Milk Drivers' Union that covers the drivers at the Victoria cleaning firm.

The possibility has been raised that in the event of a strike the firm could have drivers take truckloads to other cleaning establishments to avoid crossing a picket line.

"I think you would find that very quickly picket lines would be set up at these other establishments by the retail, wholesale workers," Mr. McCrone said.

Strike notice was served last week on the Canadian Linen firm and while workers now are in a position to strike legally, such action has been put off by continued negotiations.

The union is seeking 50 cents to $1.25 hourly on top of the current rate of $1.37 to $2.14.

As strike action approached at Nelson Laundries and Dry Cleaners recently, a two-year contract was signed establishing an immediate $1.50 base rate and a 51-cent hike over the length of the agreement.

The union said the contract for the first time gave Island laundry workers parity with those in Vancouver.

Empress Calls Labor Expert

A CPR official is flying here from Toronto as the Empress Hotel strives to avoid a strike in the midst of the tourist season that would close it down for the first time in its 60-year history.

Richard Henshaw of Vancouver, regional representative of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, said he was notified Wednesday the hotel has enlisted the aid of James Forrest for future negotiations. He said Mr. Forrest is in charge of labor relations for CPR hotels.

Empress manager Leslie Parkinson said he knew of no definite date for the next round of talks.

Earlier, he said he would make no attempt to hire outside help in the event of a strike, but would simply allow the hotel to be closed.

The 280 employees involved voted 97 per cent in favor of strike action last week. They have rejected a conciliation board report recommending a 15-cent hourly pay boost over two years for workers earning $1.25 to $2.33.

Noon-Hour Collision Brings Cuts, Shock

Two men were injured, neither seriously, in a two-car collision at noon Wednesday at Vancouver and Johnson. John Garrard, 58, of 1083 Stoba Lane, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for facial lacerations and released.

The driver of the other car, Paul Wilkins, 72, of 1541 Pear, suffered shock.

The condition of three people injured Tuesday night when a car skidded over an embankment on West Saanich and struck a tree, have improved. Rachael Williams, 22, of 971 Pausquin, the driver of the car, is in fairly good condition in St. Joseph's. Passengers Donald Williams, 22, and Ernest Wilson, 26, of Saanich, are said to be in good condition.

More Need Free Food

The number of welfare families recommended for free monthly food gifts has increased by at least 75 per cent over the past two years, a Surplus Food Stall official said Wednesday.

"There are about 200 families in Victoria that qualify now," said Mrs. Joan Price who operates the food stall on Cormorant Street.

This month's free food distribution will take place Saturday morning at the food stall. Mrs. Price said donations are still required in just about all lines of food.

Families deemed the most needy are recommended for the service by welfare officials.

No Polling in Hospitals For Acute Care Patients

By DIANE JANOWSKI
More than 1,000 patients in Greater Victoria hospitals will lose their votes in Tuesday's general election.

The Canada Elections Act makes no provision for acute hospital patients, and provides facilities only for those in sanatoriums and veterans' hospitals.

The only way open to hospital patients who wish to vote is to be transported to the polling booth at which they are registered.

Victoria returning officer David Wilson had obtained support from all candidates for a plan which would have provided hospital polling stations for patients, but this was forbidden by his Ottawa superiors.

"At present there is no legal way open to allow hospital patients to vote anywhere except in the buildings in which they are registered," he said.

Under the plan which was rejected, Mr. Wilson would have provided the patients with certificates allowing them to vote in a special ballot box which would have been taken from bed to bed.

Ottawa officials said such slips could be issued only for use by returning officer staff or candidates' scrutineers.

Mr. Wilson said an amendment to the act which would have made provision for hospital patients was defeated several years ago.

"This problem is raised at every election," he said, "but an amendment by Parliament is required."

One of the disenfranchised patients has suggested an alternative form of action.

"If they don't do something to take care of us, then let's turn the Old Comptables on them," said Col. William Dingley, OBE, DCM.

Stephenson and Dingley

A veteran of two world wars, Col. Dingley is at Royal Jubilee Hospital awaiting major surgery Friday.

"If I were at a veteran's hospital right now, they'd let me vote, but because I chose not to stay there I've been disenfranchised."

"My doctor won't let me get up to go to my polling station on Tuesday but I'm still a veteran and even if I weren't, I'd certainly be a citizen," he said.

Gordon Stephenson, another patient, suggested some form of vote by proxy might be established if hospital polls proved impractical.

David Gross, Liberal candidate, said the difficulties in providing voting facilities for hospital patients lie in relating their votes to their home ridings and in ensuring they do not vote once in hospital while someone else votes elsewhere in their name.

"But," he said, "a revision is definitely required and I hope it will be made before the next election."

Campaign Sidelights

John D Offers Legal Advice

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau should take legal action against the persons responsible for distributing literature casting aspersions on his past, John Diefenbaker, former Progressive Conservative leader, said Wednesday.

He told a news conference that, in view of the seriousness of the accusations, he cannot understand why Trudeau has not taken a criminal libel action against the authors.

"I would have taken such action without delay."

MONTREAL (CP) —

Marcel Faribault says the Conservatives have only one constitutional revision — not two, as Prime Minister Trudeau has suggested.

Progressive Conservative candidate in Montreal Camille in the June 25 federal election, he told a social club here Wednesday it is untrue that the Conservatives have two positions on the constitution — one for Quebec and one for the rest of Canada.

VANCOUVER (CP) —

Limitation of labor's right to strike as embodied in B.C.'s Bill 33 is likely to increase labor strife, according to John Monro, federal minister without portfolio.

"I don't think denying labor one of its fundamental rights is going to solve the problem of labor strife," he said in a Wednesday interview.

"All it will probably do is increase labor unrest and the incidence of wildcats."

Monro, 27, Liberal member for Hamilton East since 1962, was formerly parliamentary secretary to Minister Jean Marchand and has frequently been a labor spokesman for the federal government.

MLAs Back Trudeau

QUEBEC (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was endorsed Wednesday by a number of Quebec Liberal MLAs including house leader Pierre Laporte.

He said he is intervening in the election campaign to support Trudeau, despite "serious differences of opinion on the constitution," because of what he called the degrading campaign against Trudeau in Quebec.

Surrey Evangelist's Pamphlet Links Trudeau, Communists

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 30-year-old Evangelical minister has had several thousand pamphlets printed attacking Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau as having had communist contacts, and Baptist minister has criticized the leader in radio sermons as "anti-God."

Rev. Curtis Mitchell of Surrey Evangelical Tabernacle reproduced pamphlets issued by the Canadian Intelligence Service of Fiesheron, Ont., a private organization.

Mr. Mitchell, who said he was a Social Creditor, stated that he took up that he called the anti-communist campaign as a Christian, and did not consider the pamphlets hate literature.

Mr. Mitchell, father of two, said he was born in Alberta and ordained in Fiesheron.

The second minister, the Rev. Don Holliday of Oakridge Baptist Church, Vancouver, said in an interview he has preached radio sermons denouncing Trudeau as a socialist but never called him a communist. One labelled Mr. Trudeau's policy as "fundamentally humanitarianism produced 'anarchy, nihilism and God'."

Huge Mining Deal Forecast by Laing

VANCOUVER (CP) — The biggest announcement in Canadian mining history in 25 years will be made this fall at Coppermine, N.W.T., Northern Development Minister Arthur Laing said Tuesday.

Coppermine, at the mouth of the Coppermine River, on the Arctic Ocean, has been the centre of feverish prospecting for the last year.

More than 20,000 claims have been staked around Hope Lake, 20 miles south of Coppermine. Mr. Laing, speaking at an all-candidates meeting, did not indicate what company or companies would make the announcement. There are than 30 companies involved in staking the area.

In April Mr. Laing announced a $551,000 airport will be constructed by the department of transport at Coppermine to open the area for year-round mineral development.

Coppermine is about 500 miles north of Edmonton.

Trudeau 'Courage' Wins Accolade from LaMarsh

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's attitude toward his own province of Quebec is an example of great political courage, former secretary of state Judy LaMarsh said Tuesday.

Miss LaMarsh, who describes herself as a "retired politician" and who said she would never serve in a cabinet with Trudeau after he was elected Liberal leader last fall, made the comment at a coffee party for James Richardson, Liberal candidate in the Winnipeg south riding.

"What Pierre Trudeau has done is of the highest political courage," she said. "He has taken his feeling for one Canada and told the people to choose."

Miss LaMarsh said Trudeau has told "his own people they can't nibble away at Canada and still have one Canada."

"I have not seen courage like that before."

She said the phenomenon of Trudeauism was directly attributable to last year's centennial celebrations when people discovered "it was perfectly respectable to say you love your country."

Both the Conservative and New Democratic Party leaders were criticized by Miss LaMarsh for their stand on the two nations theory of confederation.

She told 150 guests that

LaMarsh

NDP leader T. C. Douglas does not understand Quebec and described Robert Cliche, Quebec NDP leader, as a "very dangerous man."

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield does not want to divide the country "but if he is elected he will have support from Quebec that is under the control of (premier) Daniel Johnson."

Miss LaMarsh said she thought "Canadians saw people like Pierre could come along from nowhere and make a big contribution."

"We need a new approach to old problems that have not been solved by old approaches."

'One Canada' Man

Stanfield Regrets Issue of Unity

TORONTO (CP) — Conservative Leader Stanfield said in a television interview Wednesday night he regrets that national unity has become a major issue in the federal election campaign.

In a half-hour pre-taped interview with John Bassett, publisher of the Toronto Telegram, broadcast locally on station CFTO-TV, Stanfield said: "It's a great regret to me that this unity has become a major issue."

He said it seems "not only disappointing, but ironical" that he should be portrayed by Liberals as standing "for something that would weaken Canada."

DIVISIVE FACTOR

He said he regretted what he said was a Liberal charge that he stands for "two nations, two Canadas" not only from a personal point of view, but also because such a charge tends to divide the country. He said he stood for "one Canada, a federal system."

Asked by Bassett what he saw as the real and basic issues of the campaign, Stanfield mentioned "the very serious economic problem"—inflation, high interest rates, housing, unemployment and a slow rate of economic growth.

WELFARE CHANGES

Stanfield also said that his party, if elected, would try to "revamp" the welfare system in Canada to give more initiative to people on welfare to earn their own living.

QUEBEC (CP) — Conservative Leader Stanfield Wednesday night protested "the way the government of Canada is making a replacement of the president of Air Canada."

Stanfield told a press conference it was as if the government is going to ignore the recommendation of outgoing president Gordon McGregor.

MAN RECOMMENDED

McGregor, who retired last May 31, recommended Herbert Seagrim, now executive vice-president of the company, as his successor.

Stanfield said the government appears to be waiting until after the June 25 election so it can "appoint one of its friends to the post."

$15,000 Trebles Fund

A $15,000 cheque to the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society was presented Tuesday night on behalf of the estate of Mrs. Elsie Brant.

The donation, which more than trebled the Mungo Martin Memorial Fund, was based on her desire to follow the wishes of her late husband, John Edward Brant, of Niagara Falls.

He was a descendant of Joseph Brant, principal chief of the Six Nations Indians, who fought in the American Revolutionary war as a British captain, later to lead his Mohawk tribes to settle in Canada, and to become a missionary, diplomat and scholar.

Douglas Talks on 'Good Life'

No Extra Spending Needed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Good management of Canada's labor market and resources could bring a good life for Canadians without more government expenditure than the country is spending now, New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas said Wednesday night.

Most of the programs the NDP is advocating during the June 25 election campaign "are capital programs which will be self-liquidating both to government and to the lending institutions making this capital available," Douglas told a crowd of 3,500 at Winnipeg Auditorium.

Plans to put more unemployed persons to work would generate wealth that would eventually flow back to the federal government in tax revenues.

Investments in steps to ensure that every Canadian with the ability could go on to post-secondary education would pay both social and economic dividends for Canada, Douglas said.

DOCTOR BILLS

For example Canadians would pay $300,000,000 this year in doctor bills. A national medical care insurance plan operative across the country would cost $280,000,000.

Money spent by the defence department could be put to better use, Douglas said.

Canada was spending $200,000,000 to modernize four destroyers, $215,000,000 to buy jet interceptor planes from the United States and $140,000,000 a year on the North American Defence Command.

The money spent on "obsolete" defence programs could be turned to putting the unemployed to work to build the housing so desperately needed by Canadians across the country.

Previous federal governments must share the blame for a "wasteful waste of the talents and energies" of millions of young Canadians who were victims of unequal educational opportunities, Douglas said in a speech prepared for delivery at a party rally.

No government was more guilty in this area than the present Liberal administration, which "welched on their promise" to provide 10,000 scholarships of $1,000 each for needy students seeking to attend university.

The Liberals had also stopped aid to the building of technical schools and cancelled direct aid programs for the universities.

Douglas said the NDP is committed to federal action in education for payment of tuition for all post-secondary students, a program of scholarships and bursaries, a student housing program and direct capital grants to universities for expansion purposes.

Only Party

The NDP is the only party that can take action to protect average people against the "pocket-picking of the profiteers," Douglas said in Dauphin, Man.

"Great monopolies of Canada" are behind most of the price increases that have sent the cost of living soaring in recent years, he told more than 500 people at a church rally in that community 150 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

U.S. Doctors Insist Marijuana Dangerous

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Committees of two major health groups declared Wednesday that marijuana is dangerous. But they urged that penalties for its use be reduced.

They recognized that some researchers, including physicians, have argued that marijuana is harmless, but said new studies have proved the drug can cause hallucinations and psychological dependence. The joint statement by two groups of the American Medical Association—its council on mental health and its committee on alcoholism and drug dependence—and the National Research Council's committee on drug dependence was released at the annual convention of the AMA. Dr. Dana Farnsworth of Harvard University, chairman of the AMA mental health council, told a news conference the statement was "not precisely an AMA policy statement but it has the tacit approval" of the AMA.

Dr. Farnsworth said: "Opinion on marijuana is so diverse it seemed wise for us to make a definitive statement." He gave these reasons:

- The drug has been proven dangerous both to the individual and to society;
- Legislation, as urged by some investigators and physicians, would create serious problems of abuse and control; Knowledge about marijuana is scant, and until more is known it should be controlled; Education is the best means of control.

"It is the opinion of many of us that users of marijuana should not be considered criminals but should be treated humanely. The first offence should be a matter for civil, not criminal action. We do believe that the penalties for sale, however, should remain strict."

The statement called for additional research and said that in the meantime marijuana should remain under legal control.

Secretaries Out to Lunch Over UN Dining Price

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters)—Picket lines stood inside UN headquarters Wednesday for the first time as the world body's 4,000-member secretariat demonstrated against the UN catering service. The service recently raised prices, blaming higher catering-staff wages and a UN decision that eating places must pay their way. The boycott will continue today, after which the staff will evaluate its impact.

'New Look' Shamrocks Crush Vancouver, 9-4

By JIM TANG

Victoria Shamrocks can do it right.

After losing six of seven games following a 3-1 start, and being close only because a committee-room decision reversed the result of one setback, they left 1,663 Memorial Arena fans wondering if they had recruited a new club by impressively besting Vancouver Carlings, 9-4, last night.

WESTERN DIVISION

	W	L	T	P	Pts
Vancouver	11	7	4	0	24
VICTORIA	12	6	0	0	24
N. Westchester	11	6	0	0	22
Portland	11	4	0	0	22

Next game: Tonight—Portland at New Westminster.

Result moved Shamrocks into a second-place tie with New Westminster Salmonbellies in the National Lacrosse Association's Western Division — only two points behind Vancouver and four ahead of the trailing Portland Adanacs.

Trying to end a slump against the powerful Carlings is quite a task, but the Shamrocks were equal to it with their first 60-minute performance of the season.

Pace and determination made the difference. Although they took a few bad shots and had at least a half dozen thoughtless passes intercepted, the winners kept their cool and struck back the two times the big, accomplished league leaders moved in on them and threatened to take over.

Led by Ranjit Dillon, who drew five merited assists, and also played outstandingly as a penalty-killer, Shamrocks were vastly improved offensively.

Inclined in previous games to attack in spurts and spend the rest of the time standing around, they were making their "picks" regularly and setting up one-on-one chances which brought several goals and kept Skip Chapman on the jump.

They were even better on defence, a story that is summed up in the score. Carlings, who had averaged 11 goals in their first 10 games, got two of their four on power plays and didn't too often get in close on the solid Barry Forbes against the stern checking they met.

It could have been that the game was settled in the first 15 seconds, the time it took for bury Jim McNeill to whiz a long, screened shot past Chapman which hit the inside of the far post.

McNeill's shot seemed to plant the thought that it was no insurmountable task to end a slump by defeating the league leaders.

Don McNeill followed at 3:08 with a perfectly-executed goal, picking off Ranjit Dillon's checker and then slipping back to the edge of the crease to take Dillon's pass.

FIRST FOR CARLINGS
Gord Frederickson got that one back on a power-play at 5:14 but Ray Beech neatly worked his way past three defenders for another pretty goal at 11:37. Sid Warwick made it 3-2 for the second period but it had taken some good goaling by Chapman to keep Carlings that close.

Shamrocks met their first real pressure in great style in a second period which saw seven minor and two major penalties called in the first 11 minutes and ended with Carlings held scoreless.

PRESSURE EASED
Great penalty-killing featured the early minutes and then the pressure was eased as the irritated Carlings drew successive penalties trying to gain possession.

Weakest with the odd-man edge, Shamrocks suddenly struck for two goals just after the clubs returned to full strength for the first time in more than nine minutes.

Bill Munroe got the first with a hard shot at 12:55 and Rex Foster picked off the rebound on a shot by Munroe to cash it 47 seconds later.

TAKE-OVER FAILED
But Carlings weren't at all done in Warwick scored at 1:59 of the third period, Frederickson got his second power-play goal at 7:30 and Carlings appeared set to take over.

I was, however, a new Victoria team out there last night. Busting Bill Gray beat Frederickson, and then Chapman, for a goal at 7:47 and then the penalty-killers came through to bustle their way to two goals.

Beech, taking Ranjit Dillon's pass, bailed in the 7-4 goal at 12:41 with two Shamrocks and last Vancouver player in the penalty box. Then, with Larry McNabb off for elbowing, Dillon hustled his way to possession after a faceoff and it was Dillon to Jim McNeill to Ron Elkie for a swift and well-taken goal at 15:32.

COMPLETED SCORING
Elkie completed the scoring with a neat power-play goal at 19:21, just before McNabb let Tony Colloff know that he is no man to rough up.

It was the second set-to of the evening. The first came in the second period when the usually mild-mannered Jim McNeill went after Warwick for kicking and gave the referees quite a workout before he could be pulled away.

That's the way it was last night. The Shamrocks weren't faking.

Cardinals' Carlton Pitches One-Hitter

Steve Carlton allowed just one hit—Glenn Beckert's single in the fourth inning—and Orlando Cepeda hit a three-run homer in the third inning Wednesday to pace the National Baseball League leaders, St. Louis Cardinals, to a 4-0 victory over Chicago Cubs.

Carlton, picking up his eighth victory of the season, struck out nine men and didn't walk a batter. The only base-runner other than Beckert were Lou Johnson, who was hit by a pitch in the second, and Randy Hundley, who reached first on an error in the fifth.

Cepeda's three-run homer came off Rich Nixon after singles by Lou Brock and Julian Javier. The Cardinals scored their fourth run in the fourth inning on a double by Brock and Beckert's throwing error on Javier's infield out.

The victory enabled St. Louis to maintain its 5½ game lead over Atlanta Braves.

REGAINS FORM
Ron Reed, scoring his first victory since May 24 after starting the season with six straight wins, pitched a four-hitter and Felix Millan had four hits as the Braves topped Cincinnati Reds, 3-1.

Clete Boyer homered in the second inning for the Braves, who tagged Billy McCall with his fourth defeat against three wins.

Willie Mays hit a pair of triples, scored two runs and drove in another to lead San Francisco Giants to a 5-1 triumph over Philadelphia Phillies and give Juan Marichal his ninth straight triumph.

The two extra base hits enabled Mays to tie Hall-of-Famer Ty Cobb for fourth place on the all-time extra base list with 1,133.

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

According to Mr. Webster, petroleum jelly is "a neutral, unctuous substance without taste."

Spit, on the other hand, is "a somewhat turbid and viscous fluid, generally having a weakly alkaline reaction."

From this it can be seen that pitchers who this year are using petroleum or vaseline, instead of saliva, as a lubricant for baseballs have done a lot to make the game more wholesome, hygienic, and socially acceptable.

To be sure, there are some who prefer to use sweat, the fluid excreted from the sudoriferous glands of the skin — which may offend the squeamish as much as sputum would. Balancing that objection is the fact that the guy who moistens a sinker with a few beads of honest perspiration is a lot less likely to get caught than the bouncer who loads up with a glob of goo.

The question of whether Don Drysdale did or did not employ greasy kid stuff on the ball while establishing a major league record of 56 consecutive scoreless innings has become a major issue. Next to Drysdale himself, the best authority is Augie Donatelli, the umpire.

Working behind the plate the other night when Drysdale started against the Phillies with a string of 54 shutout innings, Donatelli twice interrupted the game to inspect the pitcher's personal grooming.

Augie pured the back of Donatelli's neck and found no ungum there, ran his fingers through Donatelli's hair after the manner of Sophia Loren, scrutinized the bill of his cap and peered inside the crown, snooted suspiciously into the palm of his glove. Nowhere did he discover a trace of forbidden salve, pomade, or emollient.

The umpire had to conclude that, if Drysdale was employing any artificial aids, he was smart enough to do it in a manner that defied detection.

When baseball's lawgivers changed the language of the spitball rule last winter, to forbid public thumb-sucking, it was widely predicted that pitchers would find a way to doctor the ball surreptitiously. In the struggle for survival between pitcher and batter only the law of the jungle has jurisdiction.

"When I was hitting," Al Simmons said one time, "I hated pitchers. I wanted 'em dead. Then cruds were trying to take the bread and butter out of my mouth."

It did not occur to Al, because it never occurs to a batter, that when he was batting .350 very few pitchers confused him with Lady Brontë.

Today the pitcher has the upper hand and there is deep concern about the plethora of lot-hit, low-score games. It seems to be the consensus that defensive games are dull games that tarnish baseball's image as entertainment but this hasn't always been a universal view.

In the years when Connie Mack knew his Athletics were destined for the slums of the American League, he tried to keep his most reliable defensive players in the lineup, reasoning that a good defensive team may lose but won't look bad in defeat.

On the other hand, Mike Kelley, the grand old man of Minneapolis baseball, always chose batters in preference to glove men, no matter how inept the batmen were in the field. "A good defensive team," he said, "gets licked 1-0 or 2-1 and you know what the fans say? They say, 'They played so good and still they lost. It's got to be the manager's fault.'"

Thirty years ago when a .330 batting average was the line of demarcation between the men and the boys, older fans talked wistfully of the days of "inside baseball" when the bunt, the steal and the squeeze play were major weapons. Now there is agitation for changes like lengthening the pitching distance or cutting the mound down to sea level to give the batter an edge.

The main reason baseball didn't legalize the splitter last winter was a feeling that this was no time to relax restrictions on the pitcher. Yet history does not support the notion that the moist sinker is unkillable.

In the latter 1920s and early '30s when hitting was at its peak in the majors, the batters were getting a share of their hits off guys named Burleigh Grimes, Clarence Mitchell, Bill Dood, Urban Fieber, and John Pious Quinn, all recognized and accomplished spitball specialists.

Back Injury Not Serious

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitcher Don Drysdale of Los Angeles isn't expected to miss any turns on the mound, despite a strained back muscle that forced him out of the game after the seventh inning against Pittsburgh Tuesday night.

Dodger trainer William Butler said Wednesday the injury wasn't serious.

Monday Set As Deadline For Curlers

Curlers have until 5 p.m. Monday to enter the seventh annual summer bonspiel at Esquimalt Municipal Centre.

A record entry of 34 rinks is already assured for the four-event bonspiel, which requires that each rink include at least one woman curler.

Play will start on Thursday, June 27, and conclude the following Sunday with evening draws only on Thursday and Friday. Rinks will play through the four events on a Chisholm draw and it is likely that fifth event will be added, open to rinks which do not win more than one game in the regular four events.

Win No. 13 For Denfords

Frank Doherty doubled and scored on an error in the seventh inning to give Denford Electric its thirteenth straight victory, 4-3, over Strathcona Hotel in a Victoria Junior Men's Softball League game Wednesday at Central Park.

Strathcona Hotel 5-4 2-1

Seventeen-Year-Old Dave Mick Tops B.C. Amateur Qualifiers

By KEVAN HULL

"What's your address?" was the question asked Gorge Vale junior Dave Mick and a chorus of voices came back with the answer: "Gorge Vale."

Dedication to his game and months of practice paid off for the 17-year-old golfer Wednesday as he posted two consecutive 74s to capture the medal honors in the B.C. Amateur championships at his home club.

HIS BEST SHOWING

Mick, whose previous best performance in a tournament came in the Cedar Hill Open this year when he tied for the lead but lost out to Greg Candlish in the playoff, put together rounds of 74-77-74-74 on the hilly par-73 course for a 290 total.

Mick was bunched with fellow Gorge player Oec Ferguson, the Victoria junior champion, and young Jim Gannon of Seattle with 225 after the morning round, three strokes behind the leader Laurie Kerr of Royal Colwood who led for the first three rounds.

Ferguson slipped to a 77 in the afternoon but managed to gain the fourth qualifying spot for today's quarter-finals while Kerr, who fired a 78 in the morning, tied for 84 in the afternoon and just made the cut, tying for seventh place with Tom Moryson of Vancouver at 306.

Brian Field of Bremerton, Wash., continued to play steady golf — Mick's formula — on Wednesday with a 76 and 74 for a 300 total and the runner-up spot, one stroke ahead of defending champion Johnny Russell of Vancouver.

Russell charged into the qualifying eight with a final round of 71, two under par, from 12th place in the morning after firing a 78 for a 230 total after 54 holes.

The other qualifiers are both from Vancouver. Ross Ellison had the hottest day with rounds of 72 and 75 for a 304 total and fifth place, one stroke ahead of Art Donaldson, the former Gorge greenskeeper and club champion.

In today's quarter finals, which start at 10 a.m., Mick meets Ellison, Russell plays Moryson, Field tackles Donaldson and Ferguson meets Kerr, the 1960 champion.

It was a very frustrating day for Gannon, Ricky Kent of Colwood, Bert Ticehurst of Vancouver, the 1964 champ, and Bud Bird of Vancouver, last year's runner-up.

Gannon was the runner-up for the first three rounds but fell apart in the afternoon, "watching the course from behind countless trees" and floundering in with a 91.

Ticehurst, tied for eighth with Bird at 228, one stroke behind Kent and Donaldson, took an eight for the second time in two days after playing two straight shots into unplayable lies on the 11th hole.

Kent, who with Ticehurst and Bird came in with a final round 80, missed a six-footer for a birdie on the ninth hole and drove out of bounds on the 10th to lose his chance.

Ticehurst and then Kent sat with their fingers crossed but were dropped out of the final spot by later finishers.

North Stars Sign Nationals

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Minnesota North Stars Wednesday announced the signing of three members of the 1967 Canadian Olympic team to two-year National Hockey League contracts.

The announcement was made by Wren Blair, general manager-coach of the North Stars.

Signed are defenceman Barry MacKenzie, goaltender Ken Broderick and right wing Marshall Johnston.

"All three signed NHL contracts," Blair said, "but whether or not they start the season with our club depends on the job they do at training camp."

"All have agreed to be assigned within our system if they don't make it with the North Stars in the first season."

HITTING DEFENCEMAN
All three are college graduates.

MacKenzie, 26, is rated by scouts as one of the hardest hitting defencemen to ever play for the Canadian team.

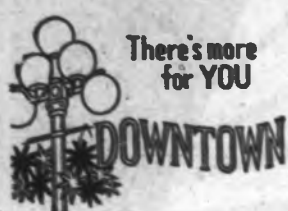

Broderick, 26, is rated by Blair as an outstanding professional prospect.

Johnston, 27, played a seven-game amateur tryout with Minnesota earlier this year and proved a good point man on the power play.

Johnston was acquired by the six-player deal with Toronto, Terry O'Malley, has agreed to attend the North Stars' training camp which opens in September.

$6,000,000 Ship Lure*Yarrows Wasting No Time

Yarrows Ltd. is wasting no time in going after the $6,000,000 shipbuilding contract that was put up for West Coast grabs by the federal government Wednesday.

Company general manager John Wallace was already in Toronto at the time of the federal announcement and is in touch with the situation.

Liberal candidates David Anderson in Esquimalt-Saanich and Jack Davis in Capilano riding announced simultaneously that a $6,000,000 supply and buoy vessel would be built by a West Coast yard.

At a meeting Wednesday night, George Chatterton, Conservative candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich, blasted the Liberals' announcement.

"It is the most blatant attempt at political bribery because the replacement for the Estevan has been scheduled for some years now."

"I hope the government will also announce before this election its plans for the promised three destroyer-escort conversions, costing some $12,000,000, and the three coast guard cutters, costing some $18,000,000, for the West Coast."

The vessel is to replace the coast guard's aging ship, Estevan, and only West Coast shipyards are being allowed to bid for the job.

The Yarrows spokesman said such a contract would likely mean about a year's work for an additional 150 men, but he wasn't particularly moved by the federal announcement.

"There's nothing new to this, you know," he said. "We've been expecting them to announce this contract for four years now. The Estevan is an old ship — 56 years old — and shipbuilders have all been waiting for them to call for a replacement."

While there are a number of shipbuilders on the Canadian West Coast, only two — Yarrows and Burrard — are believed to be big enough to handle the job. The two companies are affiliated.

***

"This is an opportunity which we in Esquimalt-Saanich cannot afford to miss," Mr. Anderson said. "It is a time for management and labor to get together and make sure the contract comes here — not to Vancouver."

The contract announcement comes at a time when shipbuilding appears to be dying on the West Coast.

***

Mr. Anderson said he spoke to Prime Minister Trudeau during the prime minister's visit here Monday and told him of a need for time in which to modernize shipbuilding here and become competitive. He said he told the prime minister the workers here, while the best paid in the country, are also the best.

He said Prime Minister Trudeau told him that after 1970 such contracts would be on a purely national competitive basis with no concessions to the West Coast.

"This, then, is a golden opportunity," Mr. Anderson said. "We cannot afford to miss it."

The federal announcement includes these details:

The contract should be let within the next two months. The vessel will be about 240 feet long with a displacement of 2,800 tons and will carry a crew of 55.

It will be fitted for light station supply duties, buoy tending and search and rescue operations and will contain a helicopter landing platform.

The ship it will replace, the Estevan, was built in Collingwood, Ont., and has served the Pacific area since 1912.

While the announcement indicates the building of the ship could begin this summer, the Yarrows spokesman said it is highly unlikely it would get underway before 1969. He said the question of design has to be taken into consideration first.

'Or We're Write-Off'—Charman*Problems of Coast Mystery to Trudeau

Eric Charman told 210 people attending a political coffee party Wednesday evening in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, that Prime Minister Trudeau either does not care about the West Coast or understand its problems.

"What did he have to say to the people of this area and the people of western Canada in his speech Monday night?"

"We're either a write-off, or he just doesn't understand the problems we face in western Canada," Mr. Charman said. The prime minister's speech indicated to Mr. Charman that Mr. Trudeau "is not interested in the plight of the West Coast shipyards... the pitiful state of our local economy... of our very many pensioners."

He said Mr. Trudeau had implied: "We shall rule with a strong arm on behalf of you, the nine English speaking provinces, against Quebec."

Mr. Charman said the context of Mr. Trudeau's remarks Monday indicated the federal government would institute no subsidies to help shipbuilding here. But Wednesday the position had been reversed, with indications the government would let tenders for shipbuilding, and confine applications to the West Coast.

Mr. Charman said this reversal was only to gain votes in Victoria.

***

Of the Liberals' Mr. Charman said: "They're afraid to deal with the events of the day, off their record, and to project a policy for the next five years."

He said the issue facing voters is not the personal dynamism evident on TV, or even on a stage, but rather the qualifications of the next prime minister.

***

"I couldn't care less if he's colorful or not," he said of Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, "because I have confidence in him. I look upon him as the man of the hour in Canada today."

Mr. Charman said the prime minister on one hand says there will be no concessions to Quebec or French-speaking Canadians, and on the other hand announces in Quebec a foreign and program involving only five French-speaking countries.

Foreign Policy Debate*Red Chinese Pen Makes Rare Point

A description of the performance of a pen from Red China was the high point of an Esquimalt-Saanich all-candidates debate on foreign policy Wednesday.

The debate, sponsored by the Victoria branch of the World Federalists of Canada, was intended to provide the opportunity for some stimulating discussion on foreign affairs, but failed to come even close to achieving its goal.

Both the NDP candidate, Dr. Harvey Richardson and Gwyn Owen, who represented Conservative George Chatterton, read the party's policy from the national guide.

David Anderson, the Liberal candidate, chose to concentrate his speech on a few main sections of foreign affairs and reiterated the government stand on those instead of on the entire policy.

He did, however, add an original idea to the discussion when he proposed Canada explore the possibilities of student exchanges with China.

Mr. Owen drew a few smiles from the Vietnam-minded audience when he read the party policy saying it is primarily a matter between Vietnam and the U.S. and Canada cannot interfere in an international matter. But the meeting was otherwise quiet.

Dr. Richardson broke the evening's tedium for the packed auditorium when he described the performance of a pen manufactured in China as proof that it does have products which would be acceptable to a Canadian market.

Ballots Allowed, Nothing Else In Voting Area

Campaign literature of any type is strictly forbidden from the polls during next Tuesday's election, Mrs. E. T. Lea, Esquimalt-Saanich returning officer, said Wednesday night.

"I am interested only in what goes on in the polls and literature must not be brought in," she said, adding that signs may be posted on the doors of polling stations with that warning.

Earlier, Mrs. Kitty Chatterton, campaign manager for her husband, the Conservative candidate in that riding, said she had a telephone call from Mrs. Lea about cards mailed to each voter by the Chatterton staff.

"We asked on legal advice that there was no contravention of the Elections Act and I'm sure my husband would challenge them (any other political party) to take legal action."

Mrs. Lea said the ban not only applies to postcards but to all material from a candidate seeking support.

Oak Bay Kiwanians tonight hear the third in a series of addresses by candidates in Victoria riding. At the meeting which starts at 6:15 p.m. in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, the speaker will be Dr. Harvey Richardson of the NDP.

Two suggestions from Dave Wilson, Victoria's returning officer: Don't forget the polls are open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday and if you have any doubt about where you will be voting, check the polling division lists which have been mailed to every voter. The information is at the top of the front page.

Also, if a person has been enumerated but has been left off the voters' list in error he may obtain special permission to vote from the returning officer by presenting the enumerator's slip at any time up to the close of polls on election day.

Replacement Sewer Link At Tidying-Up Stages

By A. H. MURPHY

Final links in a major, mile-long trunk sewer replacement project will be put in position in the next week, thus completing the first phase of a $1,000,000 city program.

The project has included a crash effort which saw the Causeway ripped up, resurfaced, widened and replaced all within the space of weeks. Belleville Street was torn up and a wide, deep trench driven across the property of the Sisters of St. Ann.

Final links will be put in place in a deep ditch driven between two houses on the east side of the religious order's land near the corner of Rupert and Southgate streets.

ADDITIONAL COST

Contract for the actual work was awarded to Farmer Construction Co. Ltd. for the sum of $325,000. However, there was an additional expenditure of $116,000 by the city in the provision of pipe and other equipment.

Assistant City Engineer William Jorgensen was well pleased Wednesday with the progress of the work. It should be completed in about two weeks.

Total length of sewer replacement is 5,835 feet and piping was used in diameters of 48, 36 and 27 inches.

CAUSEWAY CRISIS

Mr. Jorgensen said Wednesday that the area of crisis, if there was one, was the Causeway. It was necessary to rip up the sidewalk on the east side to place the sewer pipes and, in the process, it was decided to widen the road to four lanes.

"We were very pleased that the Causeway was usable for both the May 24 parade and the Swiftsure weekend. It had been our objective all along to have the work at a stage where these events would not be interfered with."

Final cost of blacktop was laid on the Causeway only last Sunday.

DRAMATIC STAGE

The trunkline will be driven further eastward in the next stage of the overall $1,000,000 program. When completed, miles of sewerline will drain a 2,400-acre section of the city.

Final and most dramatic stage of the project will be the extension of the Clover Point outfall. At present it extends only 90 feet beyond the shoreline and spills on the surface of the water.

Under the new plan the outfall will be taken out 1,000 to 1,500 feet and will discharge 120 feet or more below the surface of the water.

The whole plan is built on the premise that action of the water will neutralize sewage and carry it out to sea rather than deposit it on the beaches to pollute and destroy.

A considerable body of opinion in Greater Victoria holds the view that this will not be effective and that the whole principle of dumping sewage at sea is wrong.

Donors Bleed Freely

There were 228 donors Wednesday at the first of three blood donor clinics the Red Cross has scheduled for this week.

"We have great hopes for a successful week," a spokesman said after considering the results of the first clinic at Red Cross House.

The goal is for 700 pints of blood.

Remaining clinics:

Today, HMCS Duckyard, 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

Friday — Legislative building, 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4:30 p.m.

"I don't know how I didn't come to have any broken bones," he said. "I knew I was going to hit hard so I relaxed. I still had a rope in my hand on the way down and let it go," he said.

Mr. Haywood was examined and released, then returned to St. Joseph's Hospital for an examination of his foot.

"I was waiting when up pulls an ambulance and they wheel Billy Bamford in. He tried to tell me what it was all about as he was going by but they were in a hurry. I found out later he had been hit by a sling and knocked into the water between the dock and the ship."

***

Mr. Bamford, 226 Grove Crescent, turned out to have an injured ankle and was treated and released from St. Joseph's Hospital.

Elsewhere, a 58-year-old collarman at Growers Wine is in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with a fractured vertebra received when a door fell on him Wednesday afternoon.

Andrew Jelenak, 825 Shamrock, was struck on the head by the falling wooden door which was a temporary structure at the plant.

B.C. Approval Still Needed*New Report Card Passes

A new type of report card aimed at individualizing learning is planned for Grades 1 to 5 in Greater Victoria this fall.

The report card eliminates traditional letter grades and leans more on the teacher's written comments.

The proposed report card was approved this week by the Greater Victoria school board. It will go to the education department for final approval.

Nearly all Greater Victoria elementary schools have been using similar "anecdotal" report cards for Grades 1 to 3 for the past two years.

Critics of traditional letter grade report cards have pointed out they are based on competition and do not take into account the effort a child may be making.

***

"We are attempting to change the curriculum to meet the individual needs of children," said assistant district superintendent A. J. Longmore Wednesday. "This is part of the program."

"We feel we have to move toward individualizing learning."

A forward to parents in the new report card says:

"The school's objective is to challenge each child to achieve his highest level of performance without subjecting him to undue pressure, regardless of the program he is following or the rate at which he learns."

Nine indicators of personality development are listed for rating. Half of the five-page report card is devoted to space for written comments by the teacher.

The new report cards will be issued only three times per year, instead of four.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Please, please help a teenage girl who is about to flip out.

I had three dates this past weekend—one Friday night, one Saturday night and a skating date Sunday afternoon. I need to know where a trend ends and nuttiness begins? I am talking about boys who are getting more girlish by the day.

One boy asked to use my compact three times during the evening so he could comb his hair. He had a big wave in front and I am not sure but I think there were bobby pins hiding it.

My Friday night date wore a jacket that was so fancy it looked like a girl's. I really felt uncomfortable when he showed up in it but I didn't say anything. The kid who took me out Saturday night wore a shirt with a ruffled collar and cuffs. I thought it was his mother's. When I asked where he got it he said it belonged to his brother. "I couldn't afford anything as nifty as this," he announced.

The pants are getting tighter and the hair is getting longer and the clothes are getting fancier. Do boys want to be girls or what? Please tell me. I am beginning to wonder what all this means. — MISS ???

Dear Miss: Marshall McLuhan says clothes these days are not clothes but costumes. People are dressing for the roles they play. I believe he has a message.

The more bizarre the outfit, the more desperate the "actor." People who are well-balanced are not compelled to do everything short of set their hair on fire to attract attention. And for those of you who have already reached for your ballpoints to tell this square old lady what's "in," save your stamps. I know what's in and I wouldn't wear some of the so-called "in" styles to a skunk raffle.

Dear Ann Landers: I have had so much well-meaning advice my head is spinning. Please help me settle something that has been bugging me for months.

I am 26 and engaged to a man who is 41. Phil will have to pay alimony and child support (two children) for 11 more years. He has a good job and says he is in line for several promotions which will mean more money.

Do you have any statistics on the prospects of promotion after 40? Also what is the average earning capacity of a man in this age group? Has he reached his peak? If he should leave the country are there any laws that will bring him back should he decide he does not want to pay alimony and child support? (His ex-wife's family has money.)

We have some talks and Phil tells me he has three bank accounts under different names. Is this legal? Could his ex-wife get her hands on anything if she should learn of this and he is behind in his payments? How can I find out for certain what he is making

Hairdresser Adding Boutique

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — Vidal Sassoon, the international hair genius, was wearing a dark brown mohair suit as he drank his breakfast coffee in the Hotel Regency dining room. It buttoned so high on his chest that you could see only a small patch of white shirt and brown necktie.

"There's another well-dressed man," said Vidal nodding in the direction of a light, double-breasted linen suit at another table. "You can see he knows it. He came into the room with confidence. It's important to get dressed in the morning and feel great in your clothes."

The symptoms are plain. Vidal is about to design for men and open men's boutiques in both London and New York.

In London, Vidal will add the boutique to his men's hair salon, which is scheduled for a September 1 opening. "We guided the basement of our women's salon opposite Carlton Towers to take care of it." The new men's salon is definitely not a barber shop. The average barber has become much too absorbed in technique, just like the average tailor, to do what he ought to do for his customer.

Vidal Sassoon's new salon will have more of a club than a barber shop atmosphere. Customers will sit around in leather armchairs. Mirrors and shears will be concealed in paneled wall cabinets until the right moment arrives.

Born in Shepherd's Bush, London, Vidal is here for the publication, June 24, of his first book, "Sorry I Kept You Waiting, Madam." An autobiography of his 33 years, it tells how he became famous by cutting designer Mary Quant's hair when the youth kick was at its most ferocious.

It goes on with the geometric cut, the Grecian goddess cut, and the famous $5,000 haircut that he flew from Paris to Hollywood to give Mia Farrow. It ends before his recent 40th birthday.

From now on Vidal expects to be something of a New Yorker. He has taken an apartment in the East 60s and will live here at least nine months a year. Terry Brown is decorating the rooms and Vidal is happy about the modern four poster bed with an antique clock inset in the headboard.

He and his wife, movie actress Beverly Adams, will move in sometime this summer in time for the birth of their first child. "He will be an American. He will be born at Mt. Sinai Hospital."

In the meantime Vidal is touring the country to promote his book and Redkin hair preparations. He has already visited 14 cities where he conducts teach-ins on hair (care, style and philosophy). Fifteen hundred tickets are sold for his performance in Pittsburgh this week.

Vidal Sassoon has recently had a friendly divorce from Charles of the Ritz and now heads his own organization. "For the first time I can write Inc. after my name."

When he finishes the tour, he'll start seriously on his men's salon and boutique in New York. He figures on opening them six months after he gets London going.

His women's salon has been doing a booming sub rosa business in men's hair cuts for a long time. Unfortunately the state board clamped down on it as illegal. "It's too bad. We had some fascinating customers, like Stephen Smith. Now the wives are doing it."

About men's fashions Vidal says, "Carnaby Street was interesting but the clothes were so badly made." His brown mohair suit with the long, slightly flaring jacket is the work of a 25-year-old Savile Row tailor, Michael St. John. So is the double-breasted dinner suit he likes so much. It's this elegant kind of operation that he wants to run. "Everything's shape — hair, clothes, buildings. That's why one thing leads to another," says Vidal. He swears, though, that designing men's clothes won't lead to designing women's. He has worked with too many top designers like Mary Quant, Galanos, and Germaine not to know what the competition is.

"Men's clothes are different. I have a million ideas and I just want to do what I like myself."

The day after his book is published Sybil and Jordan Christopher will give a celebration tea dance at Arthur. Half a dozen celebrities will face models with their hair in rollers and take part in a giant comb-out.

In "Sorry I Kept You Waiting, Madam," Vidal tosses off at least 400 names. He has a good start already on the east for a second volume.

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

It just takes one trip out to Butchart Gardens to realize the tourist season is with us once again. The visitors are fairly flocking out there—on their own and in sightseeing groups. It really is a good time to see the gardens, the roses alone are worth seeing. Wherever you look there is color, color and more color.

Walter Dedworth, manager of the Gardens, told me that about the same number of people are coming to look, as did last year at this time. And last year was a good season.

I was out at the Gardens on Wednesday for lunch that Victoria Press hosted for the members of the National Women's Press Club taking a post convention tour of the Island.

Art Stett did the honors for the firm—brave man. Wife Pat was with him.

Jean Damard of Toronto, the newly elected National president, sat next to me and we decided it was nice to put a face to the name if you know what I mean. We see each other's names in press periodicals but never know what the other person really is like.

Jean has quite an impressive record in journalism since she graduated from the University of Toronto in political science and economics in 1949.

At present she covers the fields of marketing, advertising and municipal government for the Financial Post. Jean has been on this job for about a year now.

Jean, like the others, was really thrilled to see the beautiful gardens.

Was talking to Madeleine Lovaasen of Montreal, a former president, who told me that the first time she was at Butchart Gardens was when I took her about 10 or more years ago. I remember taking her to the airport at that time but the visit to Butchart Gardens had slipped my mind until she reminded me.

Mary Gibbs of Deep Cove was there and looking lovely in a soft, rose and gray suit. The betting is she bought it in England where she has spent the past three months.

Mary says she took the long route for her trip this time as she had never seen a Canadian winter. Now she has and bears the scars of way below zero weather. The freighter which Mary took from Halifax had a side rescue trip before the journey to England really started. But some other ship got there first and they returned to Halifax making an extra four days at sea.

The lunch, buffet style, was perfect. And the strawberry shortcake made everyone forget there is such a word as diet. The local berries were something special—really juicy and lots of flavor.

Among others on the tour were Jean Southworth, Bertha Scott, Vera Elder, Ruth Watson, Kate Parker and Evelyn Horne from Ottawa; Marion George, Alvinston, Ont.; Jean Ross and Eve Calder, Winnipeg; Agnes Swinerton, Kathleen McIlwain, Jean Elbert, Joanne Brumby and Helen McMillan, Toronto; Jean Marsh, Hamilton, Ont.; Kit McDermott, Brantford, Ont., and Zoe Dallas, Saskatoon.

It was miscellaneous gifts for bride-to-be, Jane Edmison when Mrs. Irvine Ritchie gave a shower at her Mount Joy Avenue home. There were also exquisite corsages of yellow feathered carnations for Jane, her mother, Mrs. H. M. Edmison, and the groom's mother, Mrs. A. G. Higga.

Pink ponies were on the table where Mrs. Jack Edmison did the honors for her niece.

Bringing gifts to put in the decorated wishing well were Mrs. C. H. Moore, Mrs. J. W. Hinchcliffe, Mrs. F. E. Peatt, Mrs. E. D. Smith, Mrs. C. W. Robson, Mrs. D. G. Higga, Mrs. J. O. Boyd, Mrs. A. Randall, Mrs. W. G. ## Golfers Adopt Shorter Skirt

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — The mini-skirt has been officially adopted by the Ladies Professional Golf Association.

Leonard F. Wirtz, the association's executive director, gave the abbreviated skirt his official sanction Tuesday.

"Most women golfers like to keep up with the times," Wirtz said.

"Our girls in particular are fashion-minded. Indeed, Carol Manh, Sandra Palmer and Lesley Holbert are some of those already wearing the short skirts."

Wirtz said he thought an official sanction was necessary to reassure some of his group's players that the association would not frown on the minis.

"I think it'll be helpful to their game," he explained. "After all, it's going to be a hot summer."

Lady in Waiting Served on Bench

LONDON (UPI) — Britons Tuesday mourned Lady Cynthia Colville, who served three decades as the intimate attendant of the late Queen Mary and then entered a judicial career in which she befriended society's losers.

Lady Cynthia died Saturday at 84. For 30 years she was lady in waiting and lady of the Royal bedchamber to Queen Mary, the grandmother of Queen Elizabeth. After she

On one occasion she revealed that her friends included a burglar and a "fence."

"They are my friends," she said with some indignation to an acquaintance who professed shock at the disclosure, "in the sense that I help them to go straight and to understand that however down and out they may be after a prison sentence, they can always turn to me for help."

strongly recommends that you make your sterling silver flatware purchases now!

The market price of silver has continued to rise very rapidly. This upswing will force an increase in the retail price of sterling silver flatware.

For close to a year, Birks has not made any changes in sterling flatware prices. But our silver supplies are limited, and our prices will have to be increased as of July 2nd.

We suggest you make any purchases of Birks' sterling silver flatware now while our present stocks last and our present prices are still in effect.

Doggerel Describes Debate

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister V. V. Kuznetsov was enshrined in rhyme Wednesday in the records of the UN Security Council.

His admiring poet: British Ambassador Lord Caradon.

Last year Caradon delighted the council with a four-line verse eulogizing then Danish Ambassador Hans Tabor for his smooth performance as council president during the Middle East crisis.

Laughter rippled through the council Wednesday when he immortalized Kuznetsov in a 12-line poem marking the end of debate on the U.S.-Soviet draft treaty to ban nuclear proliferation. The poem read:

When prospects are dark and hopes are dim
We know that we must send for him.

When storms and tempests fill the sky
"Bring on Kuznetsov" is the cry.

He comes like a dove from the communist ark
And light appears where all was dark.

His coming quickly turns the tide:
The propaganda floods subside.

And now that he has changed the weather
Lion and lamb can vote together.

God bless the Russian delegation!
I waive consecutive translation.

Well-Known Musician Wielded Prolific Pen

The death in New York of Mrs. Olive Crampton Stuart earlier this month sounded the last note in the life of a well-known pianist, teacher and composer.

Funeral services were held in New York June 8, and a memorial service is planned.

Mrs. Stuart, 70, came to Canada in 1920 and shortly thereafter began her life in music. She moved to Victoria 16 years ago.

Mrs. Stuart wielded a prolific pen, composing music for musicians, rather than for popular use. Many of her works were in competition and examinations.

She studied under Marc Hambourg in England, and in later years under Boris Roussakine and Lloyd Powell of Vancouver.

Six years ago she entered the University of Washington school of music, specializing in composition.

During the period she lived in Victoria, she found time to help organize the British Columbia Registered Music Teachers' Association.

She is survived by her husband, A. G. Stuart; daughter Dr. Scott Ryan of Denver; sons Mark C. of Victoria, C. Michael of Eugene, Ore., and Robert C. of Cambridge, Mass.

Mounties Hide in Basement

Two RCMP constables testified Wednesday in Central Magistrate's Court that they concealed themselves in a darkened basement May 1 and saw David Sainsbury remove something from above the basement door.

Sainsbury is charged with possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking and was committed to stand trial before a judge after Magistrate William Ouder heard evidence from four witnesses.

BACK TO DOOR

Constable Gerald O'Neill said he and Constable George Armstrong entered the basement of Sainsbury's home at 821 Kings. About 25 minutes later, Constable O'Neill heard a knock on the front door, saw Sainsbury enter the basement and remove something from above the door. Sainsbury walked under the basement light, back to the door, reached up to the shelf above the door and left, the constables testified.

SECRET SOURCE

Fifteen minutes later another policeman entered the room and Constable Armstrong brought down a matchbox from above the door. It contained six cubes wrapped in silver paper.

Court was told the contents were later analyzed and found to be hashish.

Constable O'Neill told defence counsel Norman Preltychman the # Mainland Youths Jailed

Daniel V. Hendry and Roland L. Lock, both 20 years of age and both from Vancouver, were sentenced to one year in the Young Offenders' Unit of the Correctional Institute at Haney by Judge Montague Tyrwhitt-Drake in County Court here Wednesday.

The young men had earlier pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing marijuana for purposes of trafficking.

A police officer testified at that time the pair were in possession of 3½ ounces of marijuana picked up in Saanich. The two had admitted they bought a kilogram (about two pounds) in Seattle for $15 and were selling it here.

Commenting on the evidence Wednesday, Judge Drake said it was unusual to find traffickers so young and they obviously weren't serious professionals at the business.

***

However, he added, Parliament took a serious view of the whole drug matter.

David Skillings acted for the accused and the crown was represented by Murray Holmes.

Stray Polaris Destroyed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A submarine-launched Polaris A-3 missile went astray. The 1,500-mile range missile, unleashed by the submerged nuclear submarine Thomas Edison, was destroyed high over the Atlantic Ocean by the range safety officer when its first stage "became erratic" after about one minute of flight. It was the year's second Polaris misfire.

rupted, saying the RCMP was not obliged to disclose names of confidential informants.

Mr. Preltychman asked Constable O'Neill to name the source but Magistrate Ouder inter-

The pre-sentence report of 15-year-old Ronald Taylor of 848 Atree was a "chronicle of desperation," said Magistrate Ouder.

Taylor was sentenced to 12 to 18 months in the Young Offenders' Unit after he pleaded guilty to 10 counts of housebreaking in Saanich, three in Oak Bay and one count of escaping custody.

"I can scarcely remember seeing a worse report," Magistrate Ouder said.

"You say you have been using marijuana and LSD because drinking alcohol is too much of a drag."

Magistrate Ouder noted that Wednesday was Taylor's 18th birthday.

"It is my earnest hope that you will start your life again," he said.

Now the stores listed below carry these beautiful Mattel toys all year 'round. Because children play all year 'round.

Isn't it terrific at Christmas when you go to the store and you're confronted with row on row of beautiful gleaming new toys?

But then when your daughter's birthday comes up in February or your nephew's in July, a lot of those pretty toys have somehow disappeared and there's practically nothing left to choose.

Mattel has changed that. Realizing that there are all kinds of occasions during the year when you have to buy presents for children, Mattel got together with the stores below and agreed to stock each store with a full range of fresh new Mattel toys. So: right now you can buy Mattel's new Skeddle Kiddles, Kola Kiddles, Kiddle Kolognes, Jewelry Kiddles, Lucky Locket Kiddles, Incredible Edibles, Mini Dragons, Picadoos, Major Matt Mason and his entire

Capital Protest More Like Militant Picnic

WASHINGTON (CP) — Militant speeches to a relaxed, almost picnic-style audience estimated at 50,000 Wednesday pledged a continued campaign for America's poor and a rededication to the aims of the assassinated Dr. Martin Luther King. It was Solidarity Day, planned as a high point to the Poor People's city—Resurrection City—established here six weeks ago.

"I intend to stay here until justice rolls out of the halls of Congress," said Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, King's successor. "We are only beginning to fight."

Massed thousands roared their approval of a plea by Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. to end "the most brutal and evil war in history" and pour its costs into a total war against poverty.

The widow of the assassinated Negro champion of non-violence gave the day its most dramatic moment and won its greatest ovation.

The crowd also revealed that of last October's march on the Pentagon to protest the Vietnam war—one that concluded in the arrest of more than 600—but this one was unblemished by violence. It seemed well short of the estimated 300,000 who assembled on the same park ground five years ago to press for civil rights legislation and hear King enliven his dream of a new America.

But Sterling Tucker, director of the march, announced to the crowd's cheers that 250,000 were on hand.

It was a totally integrated assembly Wednesday, perhaps 65 per cent white, with representation too of Spanish-speaking, Indian and oriental persons, as well as blacks.

It was quiet and friendly with few trappings of poverty aside from the symbolic scale train from the Deep South. It stretched a half-mile along the green corridor between the Washington Monument and the square-pillared marble memorial to the assassinated president Abraham Lincoln, podium for the ceremonies.

Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, favored to get the Democratic party presidential nomination, visited for a half-hour and was booed on his introduction. Democratic Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, his rival, was cheered.

Corky Gonzales, outspoken representative of the Mexican-American contingent, castigated "pussy-footing politicians" seeking to cash in on the event.

There were babes in arms, family picnics, Negroes in Afro-style haircuts and garb, hippies, union representatives and killing members of the army-police force of more than 4,300 on special duty under a hot sun.

So relaxed was the crowd that one organizer roared over the loudspeakers at the beginning: "This is not a picnic. This is a movement to end poverty in America."

The permit for the Resurrection City assembly of plywood huts ended Sunday. The population was to be at least 5,000 but has dwindled to perhaps 600, few of them the original poor from all sectors.

The day began at 10 a.m. and the last in the long list of speakers was still going after 6 p.m. Mrs. Martin Luther King, applauded the most heavily, recalled that Tuesday was her 15th wedding anniversary.

Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers Union, warned that poverty in the richest country the world has ever known is not acceptable much longer.

Earl Kint, one of the bevy of entertainment celebrities participating, said Canadian Indians sent their support.

But many of the speeches were bitter.

Abernathy, who succeeded King as head of the sponsoring Southern Christian Leadership Conference, cried that King's vision was betrayed and the poverty program "captured completely by the politicians."

"The promise of a great society was burned to ashes by the napalm of Vietnam," he said.

"Rotten luck. Every card was wrong," complained South after he had dipped his colors on this deal. "I couldn't tell." True, he couldn't. But there was no harm in taking precautions.

Stayman enthusiasts are sometimes inclined to respond with an automatic bid of two clubs on a hand like North's but actually it is unnecessary and can lead to confusion in some situations. The straightforward jump to three hearts is a safe opening, it opens the possibility of game in a 5-3 heart fit and does not prevent the discovery of a 4-4 spade fit. On this deal it duly led to the correct game contract in spades.

West led a low diamond to East's king, captured by declarer's ace. After three rounds of trumps, declarer rode the heart queen to East's king. Unluckily! A diamond return put West in to lead a club, enabling East to grab two tricks in that suit. Down one.

Did you spot South's error? He had no need to establish a second trick in the diamond suit, as the third diamond in his own hand could easily be ruffed on the table. More important was the need to prevent West gaining the lead before declarer could sluff a couple of clubs on dummy's hearts.

Declarer must therefore avoid the Pavlovian reaction of winning East's diamond king with the ace. He should hold up for one round and win any continuation. The difference is that when East gets in with the heart king he cannot give West the lead.

Pulp Verdict Out Today

Some 4,000 British Columbia pulp and paper workers, including those at Hiram's and Crofton, cast strike votes Wednesday and the result is to be announced today.

Orville Branton, president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, said the companies "did not demonstrate any real sense of wanting to come to agreement."

The companies accuse the union of not recognizing economic problems facing the industry.

Passengers Injured

UCLUELET — Ronald Harris of Port Alberni was treated at Tofino hospital with facial cuts after a car accident, 15 miles north of Ucluelet.

Mr. Harris was a passenger in the vehicle which was driven by James Raymond Cooper, also of Port Alberni. Police say the car went out of control on a gravel road.

Neither Mr. Cooper nor his other passenger, Brian Jackles of Richmond, were injured. Damage to the car was estimated at about $900.

Amalgamation Bid Revived

NORTH COWICHAN—Another call for full amalgamation with the city of Duncan was sounded by Ald. John Cannon and council Wednesday unanimously passed a resolution proposed by him.

In the past North Cowichan has shown its positive thinking towards amalgamation and it is expected the latest proposal will be discussed with Duncan city council soon.

Mayor Donald Morton said he learned of several cases of amalgamation while attending the recent Canadian Mayors' conference at Edmonton and in every case total amalgamation had been beneficial to the affected areas.

He said in all cases more was gained than had to be sacrificed.

In its latest attempt to bring about total amalgamation here, the North Cowichan council repeated its stand against partial amalgamation or annexation which would splinter the area rather than unite it in a common drive to gain mutual goals.

Ald. George Whittaker's suggestion that council support the E & N Railway Company in its bid to withdraw Vancouver Island's only passenger rail link fell on deaf ears.

NEAR CRASH

He made reference to the E & N Dayliner which serves Island communities between Victoria and Courtenay twice a day.

His comments came after Mayor Morton disclosed that by sheer luck recently another fatal train-car crash near Chemainus was averted through the quick reaction of Chemainus bank manager Jack Ringheim.

The mayor said Mr. Ringheim, his wife and several children approached the railroad crossing north of Chemainus when the Dayliner suddenly appeared.

CUT MOTOR

The bank manager was able to cut his motor and the car rolled back on the incline.

Mayor Morton said the railway company has already been approached to cut the high brush obstructing the view at that point and to install warning lights.

The lights would be installed and maintained on a sharing basis between the municipality and the railway company.

Garden Notes

Food in the Shade

By M. V. CHESNUT

I get a constant trickle of letters across my desk from folks with tree-shaded gardens asking me what they can grow in their sunshine-deficient plots. I think I have covered this subject pretty thoroughly in this column as far as flowers and shrubs are concerned, but until a reader reminded me last week, it never even occurred to me that the shade problem applies to vegetables too.

By and large, most vegetables need a fair amount of sunshine to bring them to maturity, but there are some kinds which will grow reasonably well in light or dappled shade, and a few that actually prefer a little shade, especially when the weather turns very hot and dry.

Most of the vegetables which can be grown in a shaded plot are those valued for their leaves, or those which can be harvested and eaten in an immature state. For instance, big leafed onions cannot be grown in shade as they need lots and lots of sunshine to ripen their tissues and "cure" them for winter storage. Green onions, though, will do fine in light shade, and may even be more mild and crisp than scallions grown in full sun.

Head lettuce will, not make tight heads in the shade, but the looseleaf varieties and the butterhead types will provide plenty of leaves for the salad bowl, and these will be crisp and deliciously flavored. The lettuce plants are less inclined to go to seed in the shade, but they will need a moist and humusy soil.

Incidentally, with no "heading-up" problem involved, there is no deadline for the sowing of seeds of leaf or butterhead lettuce, and a pinch or two can go in every weekend to maintain a constant supply of tender young salad greens.

Parsley grows better in the shade than in the hot sun, but the seeds are slow and erratic in germinating, no matter how you sow them. Try a small sowing for luck, and if they come along, put up a couple of plants this fall for your kitchen windowsill. Cress or peppergrass is easier to grow, producing a similar leaf but with a hotter and more peppery flavor than parsley.

Radishes take longer to plump up their little bulbs in the shade, but in hot, dry weather you'll find shade-grown radishes are actually crisper and milder in flavor than those produced in the sun. Cherry Belle and French Breakfast has an attractive white tip — while White Icicle is a connoisseur's delight.

Spinach will grow just as well in partial shade as in the sun, although I have never been able to figure out why anyone would want to eat spinach when the tastier mustard greens are just as easy to grow. Tenderloin and Fordhook Fancy are excellent varieties to grow in the vegetable patch, with a creamy, mustardy flavor. Mustard comes along fast and can be picked and eaten while the leaves are still quite small and young, so it isn't a bit too late to put in some seeds.

Given enough manure or compost in their rooting area, cucumbers do surprisingly well in the shade, usually with more solid white flesh and a smaller seed cavity, and with less tendency to bitterness. I doubt if a sowing this late would come to anything, but you might keep it in mind for next year.

Lack of sunshine, of course, is not the only problem in a shaded site. Where the shade is caused by trees, you have the competition of the tree roots for nutrients and moisture, and as no vegetables will thrive in dry soil, the tree-shaded plot will need extra watering and mulching and a generous dressing of manure or other moisture-retaining organic material dug in.

Nothing Wrong with Me, Says ART BUCHWALD

Work Addiction Sweeps U.S.

WASHINGTON — Dr. Nelson Bradley, an Illinois psychiatrist, has just revealed that the United States is being swept by an epidemic of work addiction.

A work addict shows all the characteristics of an alcoholic or narcotics addict. He has a drives craving for work, develops an increasing tolerance for it, and suffers withdrawal symptoms without it, Dr. Bradley said.

Like other addictions, this often results in medical and social problems, including bad family relationships with depressed wives and children.

I showed the article to my wife to show her how far-fetched psychological theories were getting these days.

"Have you ever heard of anything so ridiculous?" I said.

She didn't smile. "Will you take the children to the movies this afternoon, so I can get some housework done?"

"I can't. I have to write a piece for the Ladies Home Journal," I said instantly.

"All right. But don't forget we've got to go to the beach next weekend."

"How can I go to the beach when I haven't read Time and Newsweek?" I said, panicking.

"You can read them some other time. You've got to relax once in awhile."

"Who says I don't relax? Look how relaxed I am right now!"

"Then why don't you take that typewriter off your knees?" she demanded.

"A little work never hurt anybody," I said. "I only do it to be sociable."

"If you don't want to think of me, why don't you think of the children? How would you like it if someone said your father was a work addict?"

"I'm not a work addict," I cried. "I do a little work in the morning and a little work at night, and maybe some in the afternoon. But it's only to soothe my nerves. I could give up work tomorrow and not even miss it."

"Since it's Sunday, why don't you try it?" she suggested.

"All right, I will."

Sunday morning I woke up and grabbed a football. "Anybody want to play?" I asked at breakfast.

The entire family looked at me suspiciously.

"I'm not kidding," I said. "I feel great. I haven't done a lick of work since I got up. I'm not even going to read the Sunday paper."

We tossed the ball around for a half hour and suddenly my mouth began to go dry and I started to perspire. I quit the game, shaking, and started for my library. When I got there I was shocked. My wife had hidden all my typewriting and carbon paper.

I became frozen. "What did you do with my paper?" "I locked it up," she said.

"Just give me one sheet," I begged. "I've got to have a sheet."

"No," she said. "I'm doing it for your own good. You'll never lick the habit if I give in to you now."

I went upstairs and tried to take a nap. But every time I closed my eyes I could see fearsome editors crawling out of the walls with pencils in their sharp teeth.

I woke up screaming and my wife rushed in.

"One lousy piece of paper," I begged her. "I'll never ask you for anything again."

She took pity on my and unlocked the drawer. "I know I shouldn't do it, but I can't stand you in this state."

I grabbed it and rushed for the typewriter hungry.

"What are you going to do?"

"Maybe I'll write a story on that crazy psychiatric report I showed you yesterday."

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

To Her Who Hath...

HOLLYWOOD, (NANA) — Maureen O'Hara, still honeymooning in Tahiti with air pilot Charles Blair, received the good news that her two-year battle with the tax people has been won. They knocked off $100,000. Maureen, a rich woman, never has to work again unless she feels like it.

Marie, the late Nat King Cole's daughter has a good role in The Mad Room at Columbia where the crazy room in this psychological thriller is the craziest since Jean Crawford's Straightjacket.

Eleanor Parker, the actress with a thousand faces — she looks different in each film — told me that one of her daughters is working in a kibbutz in Israel. A long way from Eleanor's white columned mansion in Beverly Hills, built by Pola Negri. Eleanor is currently starring at Universal in Wylie.

Lorne Greene received the Bonanza that he has been included among the 82 stars to go down Hollywood's sidewalk of stars.

Shirley Jones describes her 22-year-old co-star, Raphael, in El Golfo, as "Spain's version of Elvis Presley." The picture is being made in Mexico financed by the governments of Colombia and Mexico.

Runaway production abroad his slowed down — at Universal City — where seven films are before the cameras.

It's the most they've had since 1957. Now if only the other studios would follow suit it would soon be like the good old days before television and the predilection of stars and producers to make movies in their natural locations.

Something funny happened to Barbara Streisand on the way from Funny Girl at Columbia and Hello, Dolly! at 20th Century-Fox. At Columbia they still use the word "difficult" to describe her behavior. But at 20th, all one hears is sweetness and light.

Nothing like having confidence. Laurence Harvey on a recent British television show is reported as saying that he was good looking and a good actor which is why the critics could not forgive him for being a gifted director as well. Well!

Greg Morrisone one of the Mission Impossible stars told me that his grandmother always watches the show — I should hope so, that is what grandmothers are for. "She said," Greg told me, "Well, you can always get a job doing electronic work. She thinks I can do anything now."

Another of the Mission stars, ex-football player Peter Lupas, played in several European musicmen films under the name of Buck Stevens. "They wanted a good American sounding name." The name Rock, didn't hurt Ray Fitzgerald.

Let's Get Involved

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

A carful of passengers in a subway train watched placidly. It was as if what was taking place before their eyes was an event transpiring a million miles away. No one rose to intervene; no effort was made to restrain. A would-be murderer was stabbing his victim, mercilessly. And no one seemed offended.

By now, the criminal has most likely been apprehended, will probably be accused of murder, found guilty, and sentenced to death. Justice will be done. And it will be seen to be done.

But what of his victim? Did he have to die? Whose hands are stained with his wasted blood?

If we too agree that the passengers are not to be held guilty — morally or legally — then we can easily appreciate why none of them felt it necessary to intervene against the murderer.

Some have seen the play as a critical critique of the German Protestant against Pope Pius XII, others as a reminder of the Nazi threat, still others as a German's attempt to switch the guilt from his own people and load it on the whole Catholic Church.

Few have recognized in it what Dr. James W. Kennedy, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension in New York City understood. Said he to his congregation:

"The Christian conscience prompts to action. Dystanders and hence-standers are never innocent. This is guilt by silence. We must look to our own time and its evils. For God's sake, we must speak. We are all part of the same humanity."

Paradoxically, we now live in an age in which the interdependence of men has never before been equalled. Individuals and societies are now totally dependent upon the conduct of other individuals and societies — for their sheer survival.

In such a time there is no longer any moral distinction possible between committed or omitted acts that lead to harm and destruction.

If the effects of an act that is omitted produce complicity in guilt, is it not as immoral as that deed which is overtly committed and publicly seen?

Justice must be done and must be seen to be done. But when? After the evil act which could have been mitigated if not avoided had done its hateful harm? No. Injustice is also committed when justice is not seen and not done in the very presence of evil!

For God's sake, when must we speak? When justice is to be done, only then? Or also when injustice is being done? Moral cowardice is always ready with an answer to these questions.

Johnson Signs Crime Decree

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed with reluctance Wednesday night a broad crime control bill that bore little resemblance to what he had sought from Congress.

The measure fell well short of full control of mail sales of firearms. It also provided broad powers for police wiretapping with court approval and sought to relax Supreme Court safeguards on use of confessions in criminal trials.

Johnson said he signed the measure into law because it contained "more good than bad."

RENEWED PLEA

But he coupled his action with a renewed plea for a ban on mail sales of all guns, in contrast to the new law's coverage of pistols alone.

Johnson waited until only four hours before the midnight deadline to act on the crime control package. Some congressmen had urged him to veto it, but Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield warned Congress would override such an action.

The new law will:

- Make confessions admissible as evidence in court if the trial judge decides they were given voluntarily. Recent Supreme Court rulings have tossed out confessions given by suspects who were not advised of their rights to have an attorney and to remain silent;

- Permit police wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping after obtaining a court order;

- Forbid mail order sales of pistols, but not rifles and shotguns.

Johnson complained the crime package lacked sufficient safeguards on wiretapping and could produce "a nation of snoopers bending through the keyholes of the homes and offices of America spying on our neighbors." He asked Congress to reconsider and rewrite the wiretapping provisions.

Youth Quizzed

Kennedy Tipoff Claimed

CIUDAD JUAREZ (Reuters) — Mexican police questioned a 17-year-old Mexican-American Wednesday who claimed to have prior knowledge of a plot to assassinate Senator Robert Kennedy.

A police spokesman told reporters in this northern Mexican city that the youth, Crispin Curriel Gonzalez, was seized two days ago as he hitchhiked from the U.S. border toward Mexico City. He had a diary containing a June 4 entry which said he knew of a "plot to kill Senator Kennedy," the spokesman said.

He quoted the diary as saying:

SOMETHING BIG

"I am going to leave this world before I lose my memory completely. I have always wanted to do something big. If the world only knew of the plot to kill Senator Kennedy, the world will never know but I don't care."

Kennedy was fatally wounded in Los Angeles June 5.

The spokesman said Curriel Gonzalez told police he discussed the assassination of Kennedy in advance with Sirhan Sirhan, who has been arrested in connection with the Kennedy assassination.

DOESN'T APPEAR STABLE

A police psychiatrist questioned Curriel Gonzalez and said in a preliminary report he believes the youth was "mentally unstable," the police spokesman said.

Curriel Gonzalez allegedly told police he was born in the state of Washington of Mexican parents and had lived among the hippies in Los Angeles. He is reported to have said he met Sirhan in a Los Angeles public library prior to the assassination.

McCarthy Delighted

From UPI

Backers of Sen. Eugene McCarthy declared a "new ball game" Wednesday after the Minnesota Democrat captured a large share of convention delegates in the New York primary. McCarthy won at least 54 of the 123 delegates elected in Tuesday's primary. Vice-president Humphrey won two delegates and 27 pledged to the late Sen. Robert Kennedy also won election.

Big Elk Lake Hospital Major Report Switch

By JOHN MATTERS

A new, 650-bed general hospital that would cost about $25,000,000 and take the place of St. Joseph's is being studied by regional authorities, it was learned Wednesday.

The proposal will be taken to the provincial government within the next week, said Mayor Hugh Curtis, chairman of the regional board.

The idea of a 650-bed hospital run by the management team now at St. Joseph's means hospital authorities have thrown out one of the main recommendations of the Agnew, Peckham report. That report, for which the community waited a year and spent $40,000, suggested a 200-bed centre operated by the Seventh Day Adventist Church, the owners of Resthaven.

The latest idea also is contrary to the following motion in the minutes of a hospital planning council meeting on May 8: "It was regularly moved and seconded that we re-affirm our endorsement of the Seventh Day Adventist Church as operators of the new hospital."

T. J. Bradley, administrator of Resthaven, would not comment on the recommendation when he left a meeting of the regional board's hospital advisory committee Wednesday afternoon.

Stanfield Accepts Apology

Ads Wrong—Trudeau

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday night repudiated Liberal news paper advertisements accusing Conservative Leader Stanfield of standing for a two-nations policy over Quebec.

Trudeau told an open-air crowd of 6,000 that he had read Stanfield's comments about being an accomplice in a smear campaign against the Conservative leader. Stanfield accompanied the charge with a call to Trudeau to repudiate the advertisement.

Trudeau said he did not wish the June 25 election campaign to take on a sour note. As far as the Liberal advertisements are concerned, he would take Stanfield's word that he did not stand for two nations, one French and one English, and he repudiated the advertisement.

Trudeau said he understands that the advertisement, which had appeared in Alberta and New Brunswick, has already been discontinued.

Deputies Dismissed

OTTAWA (CP) — Deputy returning officers from six advance polls in five constituencies for the June 25 federal election have been dismissed for making premature counts of votes.

Chief Electoral Officer Jean-Marie Hamel said Wednesday.

Bitter Grits 'Distort' For Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Liberals are trying to gain votes in other provinces by bitterness and hostility toward Quebec, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Wednesday night.

He delivered most of a 30-minute speech in French to one of the most enthusiastic crowds of his campaign in a hall in Quebec's Lower Town district.

More than 1,000 people, including party workers from five ridings, chanted "We want Stanfield" before his speech, and most of the crowd filed onto the stage to shake hands with him later.

Marcel Faribault, his Quebec lieutenant, made a slashing attack on the Liberal party, but his voice was hoarse to the point where the crowd was tittering.

Stanfield said Liberals are distorting the Conservative position on the constitutional issue to "exploit any anti-Quebec sentiment wherever possible."

Stanfield said his party stands for "one country, one

Canada with a federal system of government, one country of two founding peoples, who have been joined by Canadians of other cultures."

"This is the policy of our party. This is Mr. Faribault's policy."

Stanfield, flying in a helicopter called Faribault, landed on the Plains of Abraham earlier.

His Quebec City visit capped a two-day tour of the province and evidently was aimed at helping uneasiness power Minister Jean Marchand, Liberal candidate in Langelier.

The helicopter is named after Stanfield's Quebec lieutenant. The landing on the historic plains, near the hotel where Stanfield was to spend

Politically Fantastic Day Engulfs Grits in Toronto

By RON COLLESTER

TORONTO (Special) — Former prime minister Lester Pearson Wednesday night entered the election campaign and called for a majority mandate for his successor, Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

At a rally in Toronto, Pearson virtually admitted that Trudeau was his choice to succeed him.

The other day, he said, a child asked him why he quit. "I quit for two reasons," Pearson said. "I am 71 years old. The other reason" — and he pointed directly to Trudeau, sitting behind him, "is that man sitting over there."

meeting that put the happiest smile on the faces of Liberals.

It was not one of Trudeau's best speeches. He was heckled persistently by a small group of Vietnam war demonstrators, yelling "Trudeau assassin."

But, like all the other meetings, the crowds seem to

Builders Demand Ship Solution

TORONTO (CP) — A group of angry Canadian shipbuilding executives called on Ottawa Wednesday to come up with a low-cost method of financing Canadian-built ships or face ruin in the industry.

Temper flared frequently as the executives from Vancouver, Saint John, N.B., Montreal, Quebec City and Port Weller and Collingwood in Ontario wrangled over the problem of mounting layoffs in their yards and stiff competition from foreign shipbuilders.

The discussion came at the opening session of the annual meeting of the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association.

As the delegates met, federal defence officials were in Britain to attend the commissioning of the Okanagan, last of the three Oberon-class submarines ordered from British yards by the Canadian government.

"The damn things should never have been built in Britain," one executive said.

Pulp Verdict Out Today

Some 4,000 British Columbia pulp and paper workers, including those at Harniss and Crofton, cast strike votes Wednesday and the result is to be announced today.

Orville Braslen, president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, said the companies "did not demonstrate any real sense of wanting to come to agreement."

The companies accuse the union of not recognizing economic problems facing the industry.

IWA Optimistic Forest Pact Closer

As long as there's talk there's hope.

These few words were providing the silver lining to be found Wednesday in the B.C. forests dispute.

Both union and forest industry officials spent still another day around a bargaining table in Vancouver aware that their actions were at least stalling a 28,000-man strike on Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland. The strike deadline passed last Friday.

There were no official reports Wednesday night of the day's progress, but reasons for optimism were voiced earlier in the day.

Meanwhile, the 11-man International Woodworkers of America bargaining committee and members of Forest Industrial Relations, negotiating for some 125 companies, were expected to resume talks today.

SOME PROGRESS

Regional IWA President Jack Mosey of Vancouver said late Wednesday night "we are still progressing" and that talks had been scheduled for 10 a.m. again today.

Asked if this meant negotiations were close to a settlement, he said: "Well, no, I wouldn't say that."

He said his own negotiating committee met throughout the evening after the day-long bargaining sessions.

WORKERS RESTLESS

He was sure, he said, a settlement would be reached some time this week because of higher prices being offered for lumber in the United States.

The same sentiment was expressed by Weldon Jubenville, president of the 4,000-member Duncan local.

Without Fee Sirhan's Case Accepted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A veteran Los Angeles criminal lawyer Wednesday agreed to handle, without fee and as a public service, the defence of the man accused of assassinating Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

He is Russell E. Parsons, who describes himself as a "journeyman, hardworking lawyer" who has been involved in about 5,000 cases in 40 years as a prosecutor and later a defender.

The public defender's office had been representing Sirhan since his arrest.

Parsons told a reporter: "I have been interested in the case all along and I've thought about it and studied it. I'm just going to work hard and do the very best I can."

Parsons defended mobster Mickey Cohen against income tax evasion charges and handled the defence of underworld figure Joe Sica in a boxing conspiracy-extortion case.

AMMAN, (AP) — Four Jordanian lawyers who had been nominated to defend Sirhan said Wednesday they have decided to cancel their trip to the United States.

No explanation was given in a statement issued by the four, which followed a meeting with Premier Rajhat Jabbour.

Pulp Mill Blast Kills Pipefitter

PORT ALBERNI — One man was killed and two injured shortly after 1 p.m. Wednesday in an explosion at MacMillan and Bloedel's Al pulp operation here.

Killed was Rick R. Hall, 27, a pipefitter, of Stirling Arm Road.

Injured were Ernie Girbav, 39, welder, of Poplar Road, who suffered a dislocated shoulder and two broken eardrums, and George Guy, also a pipefitter, of South Morgan Crescent, who was treated at West Coast General hospital and released.

The three men were working in the digester area of the operation when a water tank apparently exploded.

Company officials were opening an investigation Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Hall's wife is the former Valerie Praisley, a home economics teacher at the A. W. Neil school who has just been awarded a $1,500 scholarship to continue her studies.

Garbage Dump Yields Six Skulls

BELLAIRE, Ohio (AP) — Six human skulls, and possibly a seventh, were uncovered Wednesday at an old garbage dump in nearby Pinch Run.

"There were six skulls and what looked like the remnants of a seventh one, which was pretty well chopped up."

Belmont County Prosecutor John J. Malik Jr. said he has no idea how long they have been there or where they might have come from.

Malik said four skulls were covered with skin and hair.

All the skulls contained teeth, two appeared to be Negro and one possibly was that of a young child, the prosecutor reported.

Malik said no other human parts were found, except a sack which contained what looked like human intestines, "but we can't be sure."

The skulls appeared to be from males.

They were found on property owned by Jim Cummins about two miles south of Bellaire. The property formerly was the Bellaire city dump, and some persons still deposit rubbish there illegally, Malik said.

Malik said Cummins' son was trying to find some evidence to learn who had been dumping garbage and came across the skulls.

The heads will be sent to Ohio State University for study, officials said.

Part of Gold River road near Upper Campbell Lake

Gold River Link Improved

GOLD RIVER — With the road to Campbell River their main link with the outside world, residents of Gold River are pleased to note major improvements now going on.

During the past winter the road offered travellers gigantic pot-holes, gumbo-type mud and, at one point, a stream running down the centre of the highway.

When the levels of Buttle and Upper Campbell Lakes rose in February the road was closed for two days, and Gold River isolated.

Now changes are being made, although tourists and other "outsiders" are still surprised to encounter anyone who has driven out from Gold River.

Work is going ahead quickly on the section between the Buttle Lake Bridge and Gold River, with many miles ready for paving.

From the bridge to Camp 10 the work is going more slowly as there is much blasting to be done to widen the road beside Upper Campbell Lake.

With the improvements, the trip between Campbell River and Gold Lake can be made comfortably in an hour and a half — although there are drivers who cover it in less.

Abundance of wildlife, in addition to the scenery, should make the trip attractive to tourists, with bear, elk and deer to be seen almost every trip.

Ottawa, Victoria Rapped

CAMPBELL RIVER — Both federal and provincial governments came under fire from Blair McLean, Progressive Conservative candidate in the June 25 election for Comox-Alberni. Neither, he said, had offered any help in the battle against pollution in Buttle Lake — and that pollution was still going on.

Mr. McLean was one of the five riding hopefuls to speak Tuesday at an all-candidate meeting in Campbell River junior high school, sponsored by the Kinsmen Club.

Mr. McLean suggested that the area had the right to be represented by a person who appeared in the riding other than at election time, levelling particular criticism at Tom Barnett, NDP member for the riding until dissolution of Parliament.

'Idle on Pollution'

Mr. Barnett, he maintained, failed to help in the pollution fight and never once attended a Campbell River council meeting.

Mr. Barnett, noting he had never been invited to such a council meeting, said he had as a member carried out his responsibilities in promoting the Campbell River airport, bringing mail delivery to Campbell River, and promoting waterfront development.

Social Credit candidate J. M. Gagnon mentioned his own bilingualism as one qualification for election, then attacked economic policies of the old-line parties and the ideas of the New Democratic Party. He called for monetary reform, and pointed out that if his hearers did not think this was necessary they should consider the cost of servicing the national debt: "35 for every man, woman and child every year."

Liberal candidate Richard Durante said Canadian unity was the major issue of the campaign. Prime Minister Trudeau, he said, was the only major leader who came out with a clear policy from coast to coast, not varied from region to region.

Mr. Durante promised to work for federal money for a road to Port Hardy and to promote an Indian policy which would emphasize self-respect, not charity.

Mark Mosher told the meeting his party had decided the Comox-Alberni candidates were running a popularity contest instead of discussing vital issues; hence the Communists should run and inject real issues into the campaign.

Criticizing the old idea of establishing Canada as a supplier of raw materials, he suggested it was time Canada encouraged secondary industries to give employment not only to laborers but to the technicians being turned out by our educational systems.

'Gains Exceed Sacrifices'

North Cowichan Renewing Duncan Amalgamation Bid

NORTH COWICHAN

Another call for full amalgamation with the city of Duncan was sounded by Ald. John Cannon and council Wednesday unanimously passed a resolution proposed by him.

In the past North Cowichan has shown its positive thinking towards amalgamation and it is expected the latest proposal will be discussed with Duncan city council soon.

Mayor Donald Morton said he learned of several cases of amalgamation while attending the recent Canadian Mayors' conference at Edmonton and in every case total amalgamation had been beneficial to the effected areas.

He said in all cases more was gained than had to be sacrificed.

In its latest attempt to bring about total amalgamation here, the North Cowichan council repeated its stand against partial amalgamation or annexation which would splinter the area rather than unite it in a common drive to gain mutual goals.

Ald. George Whittaker's suggestion that council support the E & N Railway Company in its bid to withdraw Vancouver Island's only passenger rail link fell on deaf ears.

NEAR CRASH

He made reference to the E & N Dayliner which serves Island communities between Victoria and Courtenay twice a day.

His comments came after Mayor Morton disclosed that by sheer luck recently another fatal train-car crash near Chemainus was averted through the quick reaction of Chemainus bank manager Jack Ringheim.

The mayor said Mr. Ringheim, his wife and several children approached the railroad crossing north of Chemainus when the Dayliner suddenly appeared.

CUT MOTOR

The bank manager was able to cut his motor and the car rolled back on the incline.

Mayor Morton said the railway company has already been approached to cut the high brush obstructing the view at that point and to install warning lights.

The lights would be installed and maintained on a sharing basis between the municipality and the railway company.

ing. Here Rodney Parks, 5, admires building erected by his father: actually pumphouse and pressure tank drawing water from well.

Courtenay-Comox Area

Needed: Industry

COURTENAY — Secondary industry is urgently needed in the Comox Valley and moves are afoot to have an industrial commissioner appointed for Vancouver Island.

The first vice-president of the Courtenay-Comox Chamber of Commerce, Fred Bosson, said this recently when he spoke at an installation dinner for the Courtenay Jaycees at the Sunnyside Golf Club.

About 45 people attended the dinner at which Bill Lewis was inducted as president, Jim Whitaker as secretary, and Dick Henderson as the new treasurer. The ceremony was performed by the district Junior Chamber president, Larry Scott of Nanaimo.

NO GOOD WAITING

Mr. Bosson, who spoke on the role of the chamber of commerce in the community today, said there was only one industrial commissioner for the whole province at the moment. "It is no longer any good for a community to wait for industry to come to it," he said. "You have to go out and sell your community to the industry."

Some people criticized the chamber because they thought that its only function was to run a tourist bureau and only a portion of the community benefited from tourism.

WIDE VARIETY

Both of these facts were completely wrong. The chamber had active committees working on a wide variety of projects and everyone received part of the tourist dollar.

The fact was that 20 per cent of the tourist dollar was spent on lodging, 30 per cent on food, 25 per cent on travel, 15 per cent on shopping and the remainder on entertainment.

One of the biggest problems and challenge to any chamber was membership and finance.

"This is the key to success for any organization because if you double your membership, you naturally double your finances," he said.

Jaycees from Nanaimo, Campbell River and Powell River attended the dinner.

Golf Course Studied For Lake Cowichan

LAKE COWICHAN—Possibility of the construction of a nine-hole golf course was discussed at Tuesday night's meeting of the Lake Cowichan Chamber of Commerce.

Ernie Ardley of Lake Cowichan reported he had been looking into the matter during the past year. "There is a tremendous amount of enthusiasm about this in the district," he told chamber members.

NOT ENOUGH LAND

He said he first approached a district lumber firm which had indicated a willingness to donate some land for the golf course, but it was found the company did not have a full 50 acres available—the area needed for a standard nine-hole golf course.

Mr. Ardley then wrote to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan

Campbell about the possibility of obtaining government land near the Kiwanis Lakeview Park.

Mr. Campbell replied: "I have only been able to have some preliminary discussions with the department of lands on this matter and we would like to have some further information as to the local body which would be pursuing this effort; to whom would the land be dedicated; what is the sort of budget you have in mind, and to what extent you have been assured of financial backing for such an undertaking and in what amounts."

Mr. Campbell said after he received more details he would pursue the matter further.

Mr. Ardley suggested the Chamber sponsor formation of a committee to investigate the availability of land.

ENCOURAGEMENT

Chamber director Gordon Loutet recommended calling a meeting of persons interested in forming a golf club.

"The Chamber would not have to sponsor the entire project," Mr. Loutet said, "but just give encouragement to get things started."

Mr. Ardley was asked to form a committee.

REVISED MAP

The tourism and publicity committee headed by Mrs. Allan Anderson was asked to work on plans for a map of the Lake Cowichan area which will show the newly completed road around the lake; roads to different communities in the area, and positions of campsites, boat ramps, stores, restaurants, service stations, recreation areas and sites of interest.

Chamber Secretary Harold Cooper stated he has been working on a map of this nature.

ISLAND SCENE

Arts School Registration Opens

Registrations are being received in Courtenay for the summer school of the arts which will be held at the Georges P. Vanier senior secondary school July 3-20.

The program will include drama, pottery, painting, dancing, creative writing and public speaking, children's arts and crafts, senior arts and crafts and drawing.

Each course will provide more than 25 hours of instruction.

A complete outdoor recreation program will be run in conjunction with the summer school, director of which will be Barry Thornton, fish and wildlife expert and a well-known outdoor camp director.

The program is open to adults and children, whether they are registered for the summer school or not. It will include archery, firearms safety, angling, casting and fly-casting.

The summer arts school will be operating for its third season. Patterned along the lines of similar schools in the Okanagan and Banff, it has enjoyed success from its inception.

Well known instructors from the mainland are employed to teach the various courses.

Drama Course

Vancouver actor, drama director and adjudicator Sam Payne will conduct a drama workshop at St. Peter's church hall at Duncan Saturday and Sunday.

Invited by Duncan Drama Club, Mr. Payne will give instruction in the planning, preparation and production of scenes with emphasis on acting and directing. Jean E. McChure said: "This instruction will be of benefit to district directors, actors, teachers and all prospective drama students."

Two Awards

Two Nanaimo area men have received awards from the B.C. Technical Institute, Vancouver.

Stanley Griswold of Ladysmith has been awarded the B.C. Institute of Technology award in pulp and paper, and Lorne Lowry of Wellington has received the Canadian Manufacturers' Association award in mechanical technology.

New Post

Promotion of a former manager of Chemainus sawmill division of Macmillan Bloedt Ltd. has been announced in Vancouver.

He is Bryce Page who has been named vice-president of the woods products marketing division.

Mr. Page was formerly planning division manager of the wood products division. He was manager at Chemainus from 1957 to 1961.

Take-Over

Everyone thought that the new house in Exhibition Park Nanaimo, was meant for the retarded children.

However the Lions' manor seems to have gone to Pascha instead.

She has moved in and appears intent on taking over the house and land, making no bones about it.

Pascha, who gets her name from Dr. Zhivago, is a seven-week-old boxer pup, who has her own one-storey house.

Her owners are Mr. and Mrs. Jan van Der Woude, house parents at the children's home.

Rotary Guest

A recent guest at a Rotary luncheon was Karyne Lesley Hyde, 17, of Comox, who leaves for a year in Brazil next month as a Rotary exchange student.

Rotarian Charles Pearce presented Karyne with a travelling case on behalf of members.

Incoming President George Hamilton said that two Rotary exchange students from Finland would spend the coming weekend in Courtenay.

A program of fishing, tours and a barbecue have been arranged for Bertel Antere and Aarne J. Ahonen, two of seven Finnish students who are touring B.C.

Cars Fail

Nanaimo Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored a mobile inspection unit at the Harbor Park shopping centre last week.

The inspection was provided through the co-operation of the provincial motor vehicle branch.

A total of 510 cars took the test.

There were 343 rejected and 167 approved. The 67.2 per cent rejection figure was described by Nanaimo RCMP as average.

Major fault with most vehicles was defective headlight and front end alignment. The inspection was free.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Please, please help a teenage girl who is about to flip out.

I had three dates this past weekend—one Friday night, one Saturday night and a skating date Sunday afternoon. I need to know where a trend ends and nuttiness begins? I am talking about boys who are getting more girlish by the day.

One boy asked to use my compact three times during the evening, so he could comb his hair. He had a big wave in front and I am not sure but I think there were bobby pins holding it.

My Friday night date wore a jacket that was so fancy it looked like a girl's. I really felt uncomfortable when he showed up in it but I didn't say anything. The kid who took me out Saturday night wore a shirt with a ruffled collar and cuffs. I thought it was his mother's. When I asked where he got it he said it belonged to his brother. "I couldn't afford anything as nifty as this," he announced.

The parents are getting tighter and the hair is getting longer and the clothes are getting fancier. Do boys want to be girls or what? Please tell me. I am beginning to wonder what all this means. — MISS ???

Dear Miss: Marshall McLuhan says clothes these days are not clothes but costumes. People are dressing for the roles they play. I believe he has a message.

The more bizarre the outfit, the more desperate the "actor." People who are well-balanced are not compelled to do everything short-of-set their hair on fire to attract attention. And for those of you who have already reached for your ballpoints to tell this square old lady what's "in," save your stamps. I know what's in and I wouldn't wear some of the so-called "in" styles to a skunk raffle.

Dear Ann Landers: I have had so much well-meaning advice my head is spinning. Please help me settle something that has been bugging me for months.

I am 26 and engaged to a man who is 41. Phil will have to pay alimony and child support (two children) for 11 more years. He has a good job and says he is in line for several promotions which will mean more money.

Do you have any statistics on the prospects of promotion after 40? Also what is the average earning capacity of a man in this age group? Has he reached his peak? If he should leave the country are there any laws that will bring him back should he decide he does not want to pay alimony and child support? (His ex-wife's family has money.)

We have some talks and Phil tells me he has three bank accounts under different names. Is this legal? Could his ex-wife get her hands on anything if she should learn of this and he is behind in his payments? How can I find out for certain what he is making

Hairdresser Adding Boutique

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK—Vidal Sassoon, the international hair genius, was wearing a dark brown mohair suit as he drank his breakfast coffee in the Hotel Regency dining room. It buttoned so high on his chest that you could see only a small patch of white shirt and brown necktie.

"There's another well-dressed man," said Vidal nodding in the direction of a light, double-breasted linen suit at another table. "You can see he knows it. He came into the room with confidence. It's important to get dressed in the morning and feel great in your clothes."

The symptoms are plain. Vidal is about to design for men and open men's boutiques in both London and New York.

In London, Vidal will add the boutique to his men's hair salon, which is scheduled for a September 1 opening. "We gutted the basement of our women's salon opposite Carlton Towers to take care of it."

The new men's salon is definitely not a barber shop. The average barber has become much too absorbed in technique, just like the average tailor, to do what he ought to do for his customer.

Vidal Sassoon's new salon will have more of a club than a barber shop atmosphere. Customers will sit around in leather armchairs. Mirrors and shears will be concealed in paneled wall cabinets until the right moment arrives.

Born in Shepherd's Bush, London, Vidal is here for the publication, June 24, of his first book, "Sorry I Kept You Waiting, Madam." An autobiography of his 33 years, it tells how he became famous by cutting designer Mary Quant's hair when the youth kick was at its most ferocious.

It goes on with the geometric cut, the Grecian goddess cut, and the famous $5,000 haircut that he flew from Paris to Hollywood to give Mia Farrow. It ends before his recent 40th birthday. From now on Vidal expects to be something of a New Yorker. He has taken an apartment in the East 60s and will live here at least nine months a year. Terry Brown is decorating the rooms and Vidal is happy about the modern four poster bed with an antique clock inset in the headboard.

He and his wife, movie actress Beverly Adams, will move in sometime this summer in time for the birth of their first child. "He will be an American. He will be born at Mt. Sinai Hospital."

In the meantime Vidal is touring the country to promote his book and Redkin hair preparations. He has already visited 14 cities where he conducts teach-ins on hair (care, style and philosophy). Fifteen hundred tickets are sold for his performance in Pittsburgh this week.

Vidal Sassoon has recently had a friendly divorce from Charles of the Ritz and now heads his own organization. "For the first time I can write Inc. after my name."

When he finishes the tour, he'll start seriously on his men's salon and boutique in New York. He figures on opening them six months after he gets London going.

His women's salon has been doing a booming sub rosa business in men's hair cuts for a long time. Unfortunately the state board clamped down on it as illegal. "It's too bad. We had some fascinating customers, like Stephen Smith. Now the wives are doing it." About men's fashions Vidal says, "Carnaby Street was interesting but the clothes were so badly made." His brown mohair suit with the long, slightly flaring jacket is the work of a 25-year-old Savile Row tailor, Michael St. John. So is the double-breasted dinner suit he likes so much. It's this elegant kind of operation that he wants to run.

"Everything's shape—hair, clothes, buildings. That's why one thing leads to another," says Vidal. He swears, though, that designing men's clothes won't lead to designing women's. He has worked with too many top designers like Mary Quant, Galanos, and Gernreich not to know what the competition is.

"Men's clothes are different. I have a million ideas and I just want to do what I like myself."

The day after his book is published Sybil and Jordan Christopher will give a celebration tea dance at Arthur. Half a dozen celebrities will face models with their hair in rollers and take part in a giant comb-out.

In "Sorry I Kept You Waiting, Madam," Vidal tosses off at least 400 names. He has a good start already on the cast for a second volume.

Gulf Islands Cruise from Duncan

Midsummer Outing for Pensioners

DUNCAN—Plans were made for a midsummer day's outing at Monday night's meeting of the Old Age Pensioners' Organization.

Members will go on a cruise of the Gulf Islands on July 25. Buses will leave the Legion and Guide halls at 12:15 p.m. and will return to Duncan about 7 p.m.

Fare for members will be $3. Friends who are not members will be charged $3.25 if seats are available.

Later in the summer a trip will be arranged to the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver.

It was reported that secretary Mrs. E. A. Hawksworth and Treasurer Mrs. John White are in Vernon as delegates to the annual convention.

Reports from committee chairmen indicated interest in the work of the Duncan organization. Visits to hospitals and some home visits were reported by Mrs. C. H. Marshall.

Members were told Bob Tip-ton is improving in Veteran's Hospital. He is now able to use a wheel chair and he would be delighted to see any members whenever they are in Victoria.

Pupils from Duncan Studio of Dancing provided entertainment.

Thanking Mrs. Margaret Carlson, teacher of the group,

N. D. Robinson thought the performance was much better than most dancing on television and was a credit to the teacher.

Light refreshments were provided and served by the ladies of Beta Sigma Phi sorority ended the evening.

At Postmasters' Convention

Hammer Accepts Liaison Post

PORT ALBERNI—Postmaster and Mrs. Les Hammer have just returned from the annual convention of the B.C. and Yukon branch of the Canadian Postmasters Association at Osoyoos.

While there Mr. Hammer was presented with the post office department's 25-year pin by Robert Reid, district director of postal service, Vancouver. Several years ago Mr. Hammer was made one of three association life members in recognition of eight years as branch president and four years as national president of the Postmasters Association.

BARGAINING PLANS
Max Lyssack, director of postal accounting, Ottawa, represented Jean-Pierre Côté, the postmaster general. Heading the topics under discussion were the new collective bargaining arrangements within the federal public service.

Among new officers elected were president Tom Sawden of Wellington and secretary Frank Hiley of Gabriola Island.

Mr. Hammer transferred from the vice-presidency to take on a new job as special liaison representative of the 44 largest post offices in B.C. and The Yukon.

ABOUT TV

with Bruce Louther

Get-the-money department: NBC's station in Houston, KPRC, carries the weekend network radio show Monitor except when the better-paying Houston Astro baseball games are on. Monitor has a segment called Meet the Millionaire, which interviews tycoons. Because of an Astro game, KPRC did not carry a Meet the Millionaire interview of Ray Heflin. He owns the Houston Astros.

Court action has ended on the 963 bottled glass explosion at the Indianapolis fairgrounds, in which 77 people died while watching a Holiday on Ice show. An assault conviction against a gas-supply-company executive was reversed and, as a sequel, conspiracy charges against him have been dropped. There were no other convictions and relatives of the victims earlier settled for a total of $3,000,000.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Wednesday's wind bag answer — The required English movie comedies were Tight Little Island, boogie; Man in the White Suit; Genevieve; car; Kind Hearts and Coronets; inheritance; Passport to Pimlico; separation; Lavender Hill Mob; heist; and Appointment with Venus. Cow. Every one a winner.

Today's question — It's Comma time. Name the four TV series of Chuck Connors and the previous one of Mike (Mars) Connors. And a toughie, add Mike Connors' movie first name before he changed it. Answers Friday.

Thursday Highlights

4:30 p.m. — You want proof that the rerun is summer king? Here it is. CHAN apparently will be running at this time weekly the ancient Steve McQueen western series Wanted: Dead or Alive.

C8:30 — Telescope is scheduled to show its delayed profile of folk singer Janis Jan-2, 6.

C9:00 — The Dean Martin summer replacement, Goldiggers, features Frank Sinatra, Jr., Joey Heatherton — C.10:00 — The same Goldiggers show — 5.

Thursday Movies

NO TITLES at 2, 4, 7 and 11 p.m. and 1:30 a.m. — 13. 8:45 a.m. — Invincible Gladiator (1963 Roman ruin) — 13. 12:00 noon — Adventure in Silverado (1953 forget-it), William Bishop. Sorry, Graham, he ain't much — 11. 12:45 — Follow the Sun (pretty bad 1951 Ben Hogan story), Glenn Ford, Anne Baxter, Dennis O'Keefe — 6, 8. 3:40 p.m. — Blonde's Big Moment (1946 mis-it) — 7. C-7:00 — The Hunters (p. 1958 Korean film), Robert Mitchum, Robert Wagner, Mel Britt — 7.

C8:30 — Dancing in the Dark (fair 1950 fantasy), William Powell, Adolphe Menjou, the old school — 12. C9:00 — Call Me Ewana (dullish 1963 Bob Hope), Anita Ekberg, Eddie Adams, Lionel Jeffries — 7.

11:30 — Tomorrow the World (1944 my son - the - Nazi), Freddie March, Betty Field, Skip Monson — 7.

11:30 — Crimson Kimono (fairly good 1959 detective), James Shigeta, Gloria Corbett, Victoria Shaw — 12.

11:55 — The Long and the Short and the Tall (totally 1950 jungle war), Laurence Harvey, Richard Todd — 2.

1:05 a.m. — Indian Uprising (1952 violence for art's sake), George Montgomery shows how to enact — 5.

Thursday Radio

7:00 p.m. — Los Ravis on Bright Lights — CBU (690). 8:00 — Two different International Piano Competition programs: the three final winners on CBU and the first of several shows on the 12 finalists on CBU-FM (105.7). 8:05 — Gala Performance: Mozart's Jupiter symphony, plus Glenn Gould playing Bach-CFMS (98.5). 10:30 — Joan Sutherland and others sing highlights from Bellini's opera La Puritani — CBU-FM. C-Color.

Three Talking Points

Quiet-Revolt Manifesto Handed UVic

By BILL STAVDAL

University of Victoria students have presented the administration with a three-point manifesto for a peaceful revolution.

If accepted, the demands would overturn the traditional form of university life.

The students, led by 23-year-old Alma Mater Society president Frank Frketch, want:

● Power in the hand of a university senate composed jointly of faculty and students;

● Elimination of traditional examinations as the deciding factor in assessing students;

● An end to the lecture-and-notes system in class. They want more seminars, discussion and give-and-take between students and professors.

The students' declaration was handed to Dean Robert Wallace last week, said Mr. Frketch on Tuesday. He said it was received "with sympathy."

Dean Wallace and retiring president Dr. Malcolm Taylor were unavailable for comment Tuesday.

The declaration is similar to others made recently at the University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser University. Mr. Frketch said the student leaders of the three campuses collaborated.

VIOLENCE UNLIKELY
It has echoes of recent student upheavals in Berlin, London, the Sorbonne in Paris and Columbia University in New York. However, Mr. Frketch said the possibility of violence here is remote.

"We're trying to re-structure and democratize the university in a more peaceful way," said Mr. Frketch, 4521 Sea Ridge Drive, a 1967 graduate who will enter teacher training this fall.

The declaration says: "We have been taught to look to the university for leadership, guidance and inspiration. Yet everywhere we see the university a servant of industry and government."

CONFUSED
"We are confused when people deny secrecy and depersonalization in society, yet themselves meet in secret."

Students get nowhere when they bring their proposals to the administration, they charge.

In addition they say they are dissatisfied with the quality of education they are receiving.

The declaration cites "dry, uninteresting lectures which come almost totally from a text book."

"We desire — no, demand — that changes come about and we are very prepared to work with the faculty and administration to bring them about."

CHANGES
The students seek commitments this fall by the administration to seek a number of changes. They want support for a study of the University Act, aimed at changing it.

Academic (senate) administrators should control all university affairs, not the board of governors they say.

Mr. Frketch commented Tuesday: "These are demands, but they are the basis for discussion. Hopefully, there will be give and take on both sides."

School Portables Pinpoint Boom

Portable classrooms tell where population is booming in Greater Victoria, says district superintendent Joseph Chell.

The Gordon Head area of Saanich is taking the brunt of increased school enrolment.

During a school board meeting Monday the superintendent pointed to clusters of pins on a map, each pin representing a portable classroom.

Hillcrest, Shelbourne, Fairburn and Gordon Head elementary schools had four pins each.

Shelbourne, which will have an addition open in September, will still have two portables.

Mr. Douglas High, most crowded of the district's five senior high schools, will use five portable classrooms this fall, said Mr. Chell.

Portables normally are used to accommodate enrolment overflow until an addition is practical. Instead of adding one room at a time the district can wait and build a large expansion.

However, the district has been leaning toward the cheaper portables since the government last winter announced its temporary cost ceiling on school construction. The government set $15,000 (later changed to $16,000) as the maximum price for "essential" elementary classrooms.

Mr. Chell told the trustees that by September the district will have 50 portables in use. The district has just bought 13 of them at $12,981 each.

He expressed concern over future building requirements if the government's current semi-freeze on construction continues.

"Unless we can get something going on our building program, then a year from now... well, let's just leave it at that."

The district now has 31,333 pupils, including kindergartens, and 1,184 teachers. Enrolment will be close to 32,000 in September, Mr. Chell predicted.

Board chairman Peter Bunn remarked:

"It's interesting that most of the need lies in Oak Bay provincial riding."

There is about $3,000,000 in plans and big government approval within Oak Bay riding, he observed.
